STRIKE ALL OVER.

Freight Handlers in Chicago Decide That Reported New Grievances Are Not to Be Found.

CHICAGO, July 20.—There will not be a renewal of the freight handlers' strike in Chicago. This decision was reached at a special meeting of the union tonight, called by President Curran to consider a report that four of the roads are discriminating against the old employes. After a careful investigation committees reported that all the railroads with the exception of the Panhandle are living up to their agreements, and that, in some instances, the men had been accorded better terms than had been demanded while they were on strike.

While the Panhandle people have been unable to place all the strikers, it was reported that all the old men would be back at work in the course of a few days, or as soon as the contracts of the non-union men who had been engaged during the strike should expire. This state of affairs met with the approval of the union, and it was decided that there was no cause for any future controversy with the railroads.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., July 20.—(Special.)—John Retallick, a fire boss at the Rolling Mill mine, died at the Cambria hospital at 11:25 tonight, after being there since the explosion. Retallick was one of the first taken from the mine. He was found with Harry L. Rodgers, lying beside a pool of water which they had evidently been dipping their handkerchiefs into.

Rodgers recovered and Retallick was thought to be doing well until 4 o'clock this afternoon, when he began to fail.

WIND WHIRLS A DOZEN SOULS INTO ETERNITY

All but Two Caught in Frail Boats in and Near Baltimore.

TREE FALLS ON A CAMPMEETING

It Pinions a Negro to Death, and a Boy is Killed by Fallen Electric Wire.

RESIDENCE SECTION SUFFERS DAMAGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Baltimore, July 20.—A fierce windstorm, accompanied by thunder, vivid lightning and a heavy rain, burst upon Baltimore at 1:30 p. m. today, coming from the southwest. Eleven persons lost their lives, several others were injured, hundreds of houses were unroofed, trees in the public parks and streets were torn up by the roots and many buildings were damaged. One life also was lost at the village of Tolchester. The storm exhausted itself in less than 15 minutes.

The damage done in the business part of the city was comparatively slight, being confined to the blowing down of signs and injuries to roofs. It was in the residence sections along the river front and in the harbor where the wind spent its violence.

Of those who perished, nine were drowned in the harbor from open boats, one was killed by a falling tree and one by a live wire.

The Roll of Dead.

The following is a list of the killed:

Drowned in the Harbor.

ROY BATEMAN, 12 years old.
JOSEPH CAIN, 10 years old.
JOHN CAIN, 6 years old.
THOMAS CARROLL, 21 years old.
HARRY McCORMICK, 19 years old.
MRS. MARY SCHULER, 28 years old.
HARRY S. SCHULER, 10 months old.
OLIVE SCHULER, 4 years old.
CHARLES SCHULER, 7 years old.

Killed by Falling Tree.

WILLIAM CORNISH, colored.

Killed by Live Wire.

CHARLES SCHAEFER.

The first three victims were out in a rowboat on the river with three other companions. When the storm broke the boat was capsized, three being drowned and three being rescued by the tugboat Edna V. George.

The boy killed by a live wire, in company with two other boys, had gone into a shed for protection when the shed blew down and a live wire fell upon one of them, resulting in his death.

The drowning of Mrs. Schuler and her children was the most pathetic incident of the hurricane. Michael Schuler, with his wife and three children, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Joseph Cooper, and his wife, had gone out into the harbor for a sail in a 30-foot boat. When the storm came Schuler and Cooper took in sails. Schuler sent his wife and children into the little cabin, and he stood at the tiller to keep the vessel's head toward the wind.

Imprisoned in the Cabin.

A sudden gust of wind threw the boom of the vessel around, knocking Schuler down and pinning him to the deck. Another gust capsized the boat, releasing Schuler, who, with Cooper and his wife, were thrown into the water, leaving Mrs. Schuler and her children pinned in the cabin. Cooper saved himself and his wife by hanging to the bottom of the overturned boat, and Schuler saved himself in the same way, after making frantic efforts to get at the imprisoned wife and children. A crew from the schooner Edward H. Hunt rescued Schuler and Cooper and wife, and towed the capsized vessel to the wharf, where it was righted and the dead bodies of Mrs. Schuler and her three children taken from the cabin.

Thomas Carroll, with four other young men, were out in the harbor in a rowboat which was capsized, Carroll was drowned, while his four companions clung to the rudder of the Merchants and Miners steamship Chatham, from which perilous position they were rescued by the tug Mary.

Tree Falls Upon Campmeeting.

A colored campmeeting was in progress in Paradise grove, near Powhatan, on the Liberty road. The congregation had just been dismissed when the storm broke. A huge oak tree fell upon the tent in which the services had been held. Several worshipers were caught beneath it. The tree had to be sawed into pieces before the imprisoned men and women could be released. William Cornish was crushed to death by the falling tree. The others were not seriously injured.

A hole several feet in diameter was blown in the wall of St. Mary's Star of the Sea Catholic church in South Baltimore. A portion of the stone cornice weighing more than a ton fell to the street. The damage to the church is estimated at $7,000.

At the foot of Concord street the Merchants and Miners Transportation Company's warehouse was unroofed, with small damage to building; but the rain poured in upon the valuable cargo stored therein, doing a damage which is estimated from $100,000 to $300,000.

Gas Reservoir Blown Over.

The gas reservoir in South Baltimore, containing about 300,000 feet of gas, was blown over, the gas exploding, the damage being placed at $15,000.

The damage to the shipping in the harbor was general, but not of a serious nature.

The weather bureau here reports that the storm was of the nature of a whirlwind. It blew at the rate of 64 miles an hour, and the rainfall was .56 of an inch. The first indication of the storm was apparent at 1:25 p. m., and the sun reappeared at 1:45.

TOLCHESTER, MD., July 20.—James B. Fost, aged 20, and Theodore C. Parker, 21 years old, of Baltimore, who came here today on an excursion, were drowned this afternoon. They, with four companions, were rowing in the bay. A wind squall overturned the boat. The other occupants of the little craft clung to it until rescued.

Aim of the Belligerents Good Enough Only to Reach the Non-Combatants.

DOCTORS PROBING FOR A LOST BULLET

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rochester, Pa., July 20.—The peaceful calm of Sunday was broken tonight by one of the fiercest shooting affrays that has been known here for some time. The shooting was followed by the screams of men and women, and but for the interference of the police four lives would have been blotted out.

As it is Mrs. Eliza Jack, daughter of "Old Dave" Echler, as he is commonly known, is having a desperate struggle tonight for her life. The physicians are trying to locate a bullet which penetrated her side. Her three fingers were blown off by another bullet. At midnight it was stated the woman was in a serious condition.

Albert Hendrickson, 35 years old, and "Old Dave," who has rounded out four score years, are both behind the bars. The uncertain aim of both men prevented an awful carnage. It is not known how many times they shot at one another, but for nearly five minutes they blazed away at one another furiously.

Woman the Only Victim.

Mrs. Jack tried to draw the old man away, and in doing so was shot twice, the last bullet blowing off three fingers of her right hand.

The shooting is the result of a long-standing family feud. On five different occasions and in various places the men have tried to pump one another full of lead, but always failed to hit the vital spot. On a former occasion both were wounded.

Both families have lived in the same house in Connecticut avenue for a little over a year. The neighbors say that Mrs. Hendrickson and Mrs. Jack have quarreled until the tongue-lashing reached a stage where the men took sides, the one with his daughter and the other with his wife. This evening Mrs. Jack was sitting on the porch, when Mrs. Hendrickson, it is said, made an unseemly remark about her, Mrs. Jack's father, being supported by a church society. This provoked Mrs. Jack, and she found a suitable answer.

Start of the Gun-Play.

Then Hendrickson, the husband, turned in. Quick as a flash "Old Dave" whipped a revolver from his side pocket and opened fire on Hendrickson, missing him each time. Hendrickson ran into his apartment and, having secured a revolver, began shooting before he was half way to the door. As soon as he reached the porch he fired time and again at Echler, and the old man returned the fire until his daughter tried to pull him away. One bullet grazed his ear, and the next two were stopped by his daughter. She fell on the porch, and when picked up was found to be seriously wounded.

Just as the woman fell the police and hundreds of people from the center of the city hurried to the spot. Detective Isaac Lazartis disarmed both men and took them to Alderman J. J. Schrupp's office. They were later remanded to jail to await the result of Mrs. Jack's injuries. Mrs. Hendrickson fainted after the affair was over, and is now also in a serious condition.

London, July 20.—John W. Mackay died at 6:30 o'clock this evening at his London residence in his 72d year. His death was unexpected, for although he had been ill since Tuesday his physicians held out hope until yesterday that he would recover.

Mr. Mackay as a rule enjoyed robust health. Less than a week ago he was actively engaged in directing the great interests with which he was connected. The immediate cause of death was heart failure. There were, however, symptoms of pneumonia. The left lung was badly congested.

When the end came Mrs. Mackay was at his bedside, and with her were her mother, Mrs. Hungerford, and her sister, Countess Telfner. Mrs. Mackay's daughter, the Princess Galatro Colonna, who was summoned from Paris, arrived about an hour after Mr. Mackay had breathed his last. G. G. Ward, vice president and general manager of the Commercial Cable Company, also was in the house when the end came.

Mr. Mackay was taken ill last Tuesday. He had been in the offices of the Commercial Cable Company with Mr. Ward, and the two gentlemen went out to luncheon. Mr. Mackay, who had been complaining that he did not feel well, was seized with a chill. Mr. Ward put him into a cab, brought him back to Carlton House terrace and Mr. Mackay went to bed.

The physicians who were called in did not consider his condition very serious. A denial was issued of a report, which was current in the city, that he was dangerously ill. The patient's condition seemed to improve a little on Wednesday and Thursday, although his heart from the first gave the physicians much cause for concern. On Friday there was a slight turn for the worse, but even then a fatal termination was not anticipated. Mr. Mackay's condition became still more alarming on Saturday. His heart continued to grow weaker in its action. Despite the endeavors of his physicians, who administered oxygen, he passed a very bad night.

Yesterday morning Sir Richard Douglas Powell, Dr. Jones and Dr. Orr were summoned and held a consultation. Everything possible was done for the sufferer, but, despite all their efforts, Mr. Mackay grew weaker and lapsed into unconsciousness, in which condition he remained throughout the day till the end came, peacefully and without pain.

No definite arrangements for the funeral have yet been made. Mrs. Mackay is quite prostrated by her loss, and the details will be attended to by Mr. Ward. Clarence H. Mackay, who sailed on the Campania, cannot arrive in London before Friday night at the earliest.

HOW JOHN W. MACKAY MADE HIS FORTUNE

Had Many Ups and Downs Before He Struck It Rich in the Nevada Gold Mines.

With John William Mackay passes away a singularly picturesque and interesting character, identified with one of the most picturesque and interesting episodes in all American history—the making of the Pacific states. He was the last survivor of a puissant partnership as important in California during the last two-score years as that of the four caliphs who overturned the world after Mahomet. He was personally identified with other enterprises which made his name a power throughout the civilized world.

With his wife, he established himself as one of the social leaders of the American colony, first in Paris and then in London; yet he remained simple, plain, unpretending to the last.

The world at large knew him as a millionaire many times over. He was flattered and fawned upon, or slandered and reviled, as is the habit of the world toward its millionaires; but he never was accused of any of the worst offenses of which millionaires have been held guilty. He was generous and considerate, a man who had risen from the ranks of the poor, and always preserved a respect for honest poverty and could look through a suit of clothes to the man underneath. His friends knew him as a man of sterling ability, a lover of art and literature, and in the best sense of the word, a gentleman.

Fired by the California Fever.

John William Mackay was born in Dublin, Ireland, on November 28, 1831. He came of good stock, though his family were not blessed with large worldly possessions. In 1840 he emigrated to New York. After a brief period in the public schools, he was apprenticed to the trade of shipbuilding in the well-known firm of William H. Webb; but shipbuilding was not his vocation.

He was 18 years of age when news of the finding of gold in California fired all the young and ardent spirits in all parts of America, and, indeed, in the world, but it was not until he became his own master, in 1851, that he was able to follow in the wake of the Argonauts who had trudged and ridden across the continent, or round Cape Horn, to reach the land of promise. He arrived in California full of ambition. He resolved that he could do better than dig into the ground, and though he lived in a miner's hut, subsisting on the scant supplies open to prospectors, he did not have to do so long.

He went first into placer mining in Allegheny, and was then swept with the tide which swelled toward the new

GEN. J. H. SMITH NEVER ISSUED FAMOUS ORDER

Waller Took Seriously Remark Made After Balingaga Massacre.

GROESBECK TALKS ON PHILIPPINES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

San Francisco, July 20.—Col. Stephen W. Groesbeck, formerly judge advocate of the division of the Philippines, has arrived here from Manila, en route to Chicago, where he will take station as judge advocate of the department of the lakes. Col. Groesbeck was chief reviewing authority in the trials of Maj. Waller and Gen. Jacob H. Smith, both of whom were court-martialed for methods used in the Samar campaign.

Discussing the Waller trial, Col. Groesbeck characterized Maj. Waller as a tactician, not a leader. In reviewing that case, he said:

"I could only give a qualified approval of the findings of the court, because I believed him responsible largely for the conditions that caused his men to commit the offenses charged. When an attempt was made to lead a detachment of his command, consisting of four officers, 74 enlisted men and 36 'cargadoros' from coast towns across the island of Samar in search of the enemy, about midway of his course, he found himself in the heart of an uninhabited, mountainous section without rations and without medical attendance. The march had been begun without proper provision being made.

In Pitiable Condition.

The men's shoes had worn away, their clothing hung in tatters, many were stricken with fever, their feet bruised and bleeding, their bodies lacerated by thorns, and adding to this wretchedness, the leeches, which abound, attacked and greatly aggravated their exposed wounds. To the cry for food the cargadoros, it is alleged, did not efficiently respond, and the suspicion was aroused in the minds of the starving men that the cargadoros were conniving at their destruction. For this they were placed under guard, and all those from whom a cry of retaliation came were executed."

Referring to the famous "kill and burn" order, alleged to have been issued by Gen. Smith, Col. Groesbeck said:

"No such order was ever issued by Smith, but he is an impetuous and erratic man, and when going over the ground at Balingaga, after the massacre of an entire company of the Ninth infantry, he remarked to Waller that they would be justified in killing and burning as they went."

Col. Groesbeck did not think that Waller or any of the officers of his command should be held accountable for the lives destroyed, but he believed, had more careful provision been made when the fatal march was begun, it would not have ended with such disastrous results.

Believes in Water Cure.

He spoke of Gen. Smith as a fine officer, and expressed regret at the humiliation attached to the recent orders for his retirement.

Col. Groesbeck believes in the "water cure," and said that in all the complaints caused by this methods of forcing the insurgents to give information as to where arms were hidden, etc., it had been abused only by young officers, overzealous and inexperienced in their work.

"I believe," said he, "the water cure as practiced by the American army in the Philippines, to be the most humane method of obtaining information from prisoners of war that is known to modern warfare."

On the Philippine question in general, Col. Groesbeck said:

"We are there to stay. The price that has been paid for the islands demands that we hold them, but to civilize and establish a government that can be ultimately given into the keeping of the natives is a task beyond the comprehension of those unacquainted with the treachery that has been instilled into the people by their former rulers. The uplifted bolo is the only law that they have feared for ages, and strenuous means must be adopted to eradicate such ideas."

ONLY SHORT STOP MADE BY TEACHERS AT OLD ANTWERP

Chief Pleasure of the Day Is Visit to Field of Waterloo.

ARE NOW IN BRUSSELS

By L. W. STRAYER,
Staff Correspondent.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Brussels, July 20.—The first Sunday of The Pittsburgh Gazette and Chronicle Telegraph party of teachers in Europe found them at Antwerp for the morning services at the great cathedral. As Antwerp is almost wholly Catholic there was little choice in the matter of church service, even had any of the party wanted to go elsewhere than to the cathedral, which is doubtful. The service was most impressive, and the music excellent.

Very little time was on the schedule for the Antwerp visit, and it was with some regret that we left for Brussels without even a peep into the art gallery and the library, two things for which the city is famous. But as a recompense we saw Waterloo. A visit to that famous field where Napoleon's last gleam of power was lost, and where Wellington demonstrated to the world that the "Little Emperor" was not invincible, fills one's thoughts so full of the glories of the past that he hardly has time to think of the present.

For persons who had never before seen the field, the teachers found that their knowledge of the localities was remarkable, and the guides declare that they never before had such excellently informed tourists to show over the field. The day was most delightful, though a little warm, and the party took great pleasure in going from point to point, listening to the story of the great battle that robbed the world of one great warrior and made the name of another famous wherever books are read and war is considered an art. But best of all was that bit of ground known as the "Last Stand of the Old Guard," made famous in art as well as story, and one could almost see those seasoned and battle-scarred French veterans facing death but not surrender.

Taking it all in all, today has been the best of the trip so far, and all enjoyed it to the utmost. The health and good spirits of all continue of the best.

BRYAN'S FRIENDS TO GET TOGETHER BRAND NEW PARTY

Determined Not to Stay in the Same Organization With Hill and Cleveland.

REVEALED BY PETTIGREW

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, July 20.—Alarmed and angered by the growing power of Grover Cleveland, David B. Hill and other Democrats over the Democratic organization in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and other eastern states, William J. Bryan's friends are going to drop silver, declare that the money question is settled and form a new party out of the shreds and patches of some old organizations. Announcement to this effect was made by ex-Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota after a long conference at the Oriental hotel, Manhattan Beach, this afternoon, in which F. E. Dubois, United States senator from Idaho; Prof. Garrett of North Dakota, George Sibley of Washington and some other western Democrats took part.

Bryan's recent letter to the Tilden club, denouncing Cleveland, was the first blast of the bugle. During Mr. Bryan's forthcoming tour of the eastern states he will continu his attacks at every opportunity and endeavor to hold as many of the state organizations as possible. Pettigrew and Dubois are the advance heralds of the new movement. Their meeting today was said to be mainly to approve some literature which is to be scattered along Bryan's path.

"Will Bryan head the new party movement?"

"Bryan," replied Mr. Pettigrew, "will not be a candidate again for president, but he is one of the foremost of Americans, and he will have a great deal to say about its platforms and issues."

"What will be done with the silver question?"

"That is dead."

The Roosevelts' Quiet Sunday.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 20.—President Roosevelt passed a quiet Sunday at Sagamore Hill. There were no callers. The president and his family attended religious services in the morning at Christ Episcopal church, of which Mrs. Roosevelt is a member.

PROUD SULTAN OF THE MOROS TAKES IT BACK

Potentate Who Declared War on Americans Is Eating Humble Pie.

STILL PREPARING TO MEET LADRONES

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Manila, July 20.—The sultan of Bacaiod, Mindanao, who recently sent an insultingly worded communication to the commander of the American expedition to Lake Lanao, in which he threatened to begin offensive operations in August, has now written a friendly letter to the commander of the American forces, in which he disavows all desire to fight, and says he will confer with the Americans in the future. The general Moro situation is regarded as favorable.

Acting Gov. Wright, Secretary Ferguson and Gens. Bell and Bisbee will accompany Gen. Chaffee on his return to the United States. The party will sail on the United States transport McClellan, September 30.

Two natives who were implicated in the massacre of American soldiers at Binangonan, Rizal province, island of Luzon, on Memorial Day, have been arrested on a charge of murder. Their identification is complete.

The movement in Cavite province against the Ladrones is not yet completed. It is anticipated that many Ladrones will be captured, but it is possible that the leaders have escaped to the mountains. The withdrawal of the constabulary from Bulacan and Rizal to take part in the movement in Cavite has produced considerable activity northeast of Manila, where the provincial police are watching the Ladrones.

Cholera is decreasing in Manila and the provinces and the health board has decided to relax the quarantine regulations which have been enforced between cities and provinces. This step has been decided upon because of the failure of the natives to co-operate in the measure and the general native opposition to sanitary plans.

NEGRO MINERS START RIOT IN COLORADO

One of Their Number Shot by Guard and He Is Driven Into the Mountains.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

FLORENCE, COL., July 20.—W. H. White, a negro miner employed at Chandler, was fatally shot by Ed. Bakewell, a guard at the mine during a riot late last night. About midnight a mob of negroes compelled Bakewell to flee for his life into the woods, where he was overtaken and besieged.

Yesterday was payday at the mines, and the negroes became intoxicated, brandishing weapons and terrorizing the guards. White and his companions came upon Bakewell and another guard and a quarrel followed, in which White was shot. The negroes gathered and chased the guard out of town.

Sheriff Simon of Canon City arrived this morning, and, finding Bakewell besieged on a hill by the negroes, took him away. The blacks pursued them, firing over 100 shots at the officers, none of which took effect.

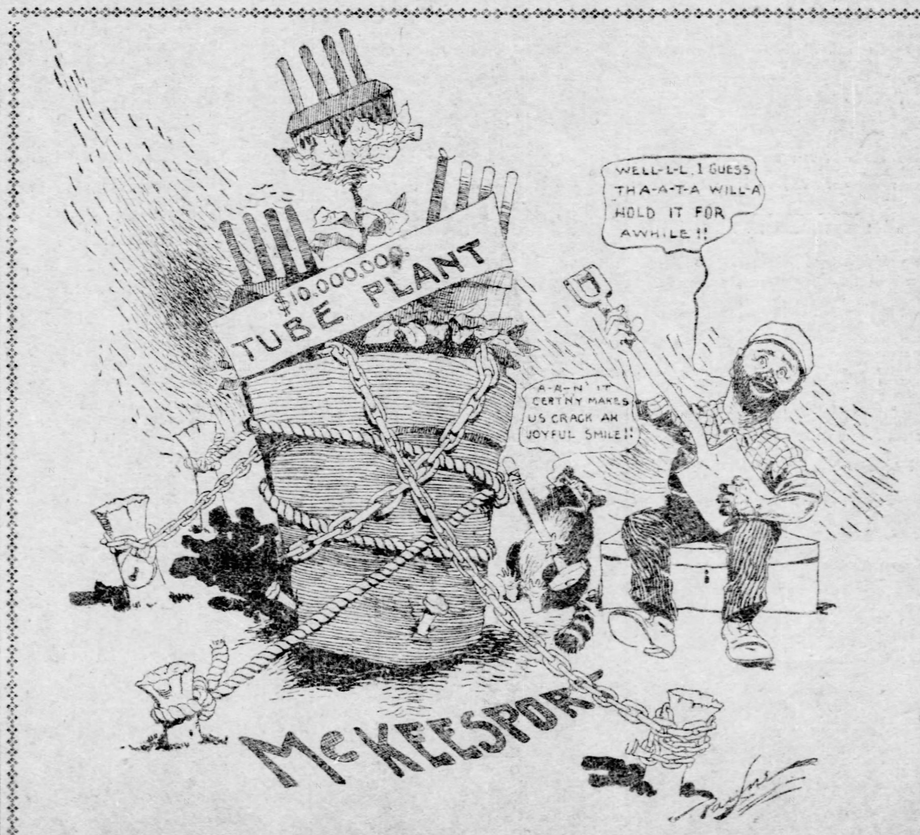
The mines are heavily guarded tonight, but no further trouble is expected.

THE KING AT WORSHIP.

His Progress Toward Recovery Still Surprises the Doctors.

COWES, ISLE OF WIGHT, July 20.—King Edward today attended divine services, which were conducted by Commodore Lambton, commander of the Victoria and Albert. Queen Alexandra and the other members of the royal family aboard the yacht also were present. A cold northeast wind required the enclosing of the sides and stern of the deck where the king usually stays.

His majesty now rises at 9 o'clock in the morning and takes his breakfast half an hour later, after which he is visited by his physicians. The king's progress continues to surprise his doctors.



McKeesport's Joyful Song.

of Nevada. At Virginia City he opened a mine of his own, north of the Ophir mine. There he lost all he owned. The earth refused to give back a penny of the scanty savings which he had been able to put into it.

From Fortune to Hard Labor.

Undismayed, he went to work at $4 a day as timber man. His arms were brawny, his courage dauntless. He told his fellow-miners that he wished to save $25,000, so that his mother might live in comfort for the rest of her life. Miners were not of a saving disposition, and they smiled as the young man sawed lumber and talked of what they thought was the impossible.

His first substantial start was in connection with the Kentucky mine in Gold hill. After many changes of fortune he went into partnership with J. M. Walker, brother of former Gov. Walker of Virginia, in 1863. This firm was enlarged by the addition of James C. Flood and William O'Brien in 1864. Four years later James G. Fair, afterward United States senator from Nevada, took the place of Mr. Walker.

This firm made its first "strike" during their control of the Hale and Norcross mine in 1865. They accumulated a few hundred thousand dollars. Mr. Mackay had great confidence in what has since been called the Bonanza territory, which Mr. Sharon and his friends abandoned after they had sought in vain for pay ore. The youngest member of the Bonanza firm, Mr. Mackay, was its leading spirit, and he induced his associates to purchase the land that had been given up.

After Apparent Failure, Success.

The partners worked for months, sinking half a million dollars, almost the extent of their "pile," in the move. Many times the others would have given up, but Mr. Mackay's determined spirit brought fresh supplies of enthusiasm when it was needed. Mining men in the district looked with disfavor on the work, and the temptation was strong to throw it up instead of sending good money after bad.

But at last came the triumph of Mr. Mackay. The forlorn hope that he had led became a success, and in 1872 the financial and commercial world was startled by news of the discovery of the Bonanza mines. John Russell Young, in his reminiscences, has told how, strolling once with Mr. Mackay in Virginia City, the pair paused to look into a smoking cavity in the ground that was soon lost in darkness, at the mouth of which a windlass was slowly grinding.

"Out of that hole," said Mr. Mackay, "I took $150,000,000 in bullion."

It was one of the Bonanza mines, the big Bonanza, as it was called. It was a pocket of crude ore about as high as the steeple of Allegheny court house tower, and with an area as large as a good-sized city block.

The discovery of the Bonanza mine and its successful exploitation turned the attention of the bonanza kings to finance. Messrs. Mackay, Flood and Fair established the famous Nevada bank, with a capital of $10,000,000. It remains one of the leading financial institutions on the Pacific coast to this day.

Weathers a Financial Storm.

The famous California wheat deal in which the Nevada bank was involved came to an untimely end in August, 1884. Interests which had been antagonized by the new cable spread the rumor that the bank had been operating a bull pool in grain and that it was virtually smashed. Mr. Mackey, it was declared, had lost $3,000,000 and had nothing left of his fortune but some non-dividend paying stocks.

Friends of the Bonanza king explained that the bank manager during his absence had lent some hundreds of thousands of dollars on wheat cargoes with a view to a rising market. With one or two street brokers he had divined a European war or some other manifestation of Providence and concluded that grain must be dear. After the first half million went other half millions to sustain and recover the market. Millions after million went and wheat fell down.

Mr. Mackay was in London and hearing of the speculation suddenly returned. He found the Nevada bank buying the wheat crop of California at an advance of 30 per cent above its market value. Mr. Mackay had not only to face the crisis in the bank's affairs, but to avert a panic that would have been the result of the failure of the Nevada bank. He came out of it financially strong and the power of the cliques that had been trying to ruin him, so that they might be able to pick out choice selections from the wreck, were disappointed.

Plenty of Physical Courage.

That he was a fighter, physically as well as with his brain, was shown on January 29, 1891, when he thrashed W. C. Bonynge, a San Francisco broker, in the president's room of the Nevada bank. Mr. Mackay thought he had reason to consider that certain cowardly attacks upon his wife had been instigated by the broker, and he beat the man within an inch of his life.

He also showed his courage when, on February 24, 1893, he was shot by one W. C. Rippey, a speculator, who had been crazed by mining losses. Rippey lay in wait for Mackay in Lick place, San Francisco, fired two shots at his back and then turned the pistol upon himself. One shot had made an ugly bullet wound just to the right of the millionaire's spine. Mackay did not know he was hit until a bystander directed his attention to a hole in the back of his coat. Mr. Mackay placed his hand there and withdrew it, covered with blood. He was taken to his quarters in the Palace hotel. There the bullet was extracted, the bluff old mining man refusing to take anaesthetics, although informed that the operation would be an exceedingly painful one.

Mr. Mackay's marriage, a peculiarly happy one, was romantic in its beginning. Mrs. Mackay was the daughter of Col. Hungerford, a veteran of the Mexican war. A native of New York, Hungerford had emigrated to San Francisco with the Argonauts. His daughter married Dr. Bryant, a physician, and moved to Nevada, where the doctor died soon after, leaving one surviving daughter, Eva. He was a poor man and left his wife and child in straitened circumstances.

Began in Charity, Ended in Love.

Mr. Mackay heard of this some months later, and started a subscription for the widow's benefit, heading it with a neat little contribution of his own. This so touched the widow's heart that she called to thank him for his kindness. She was pretty, bright, well educated and attractive. In brief, he fell in love with and married her.

At that time Mr. Mackay was superintendent of a mine and only moderately well off. Though the young couple established themselves in a rough cabin, they had many comforts. Their fortunes steadily improved. Then Mrs. Mackay fell ill of a nervous affection. She was advised by a physician to consult a famous specialist in Paris. While she was away her husband uncovered wealth in the California and Consolidated Virginia mines and suddenly found himself a millionaire.

Mrs. Mackay became an acknowledged social leader among the Americans in Paris, where she remained until 1891, when she removed permanently to London and established herself in the famous Carlton house. Mr. Mackay, a cosmopolitan in all the great capitals of the world, paid her periodical visits, but the greater part of his time was spent in the United States at the Palace hotel in San Francisco, or for the most part in apartments in New York city.

The Meissonier Picture Fiasco.

The most noted episode of the Mackay residence in Paris was that which connected them with Meissonier. The great French artist was commissioned by Mr. Mackay to paint a portrait of his wife for 75,000 francs. When it was delivered the Mackays decided that it was entirely unworthy of the subject and painter.

"I wanted a Meissonier," he said, "not Meissonier painting a slovenly imitation of Cabanel."

This criticism was indorsed by some artists who had seen the picture. It was said that the French artist, deeming anything to be good enough for Nevada, took no pains with the work; that he had produced it after an insufficient number of sittings, and had hastily painted in the hands from one of his models. Furthermore, the portrait showed a woman 10 years older than its subject.

Many French artists, however, indorsed the work. His friends gave Meissonier a dinner as a vindication, and the French press and public were for a time clamorously indignant. The indignation rose to a climax when it was reported that Mrs. Mackay had thrown the picture into the fire. This was not true. It was hung in a small room with its face to the wall. Today it has an abiding place in Carlton house.

Attacks Upon Mrs. Mackay.

Mrs. Mackay's wealth and hospitality laid her open to attacks from social parasites, "strained" Americans, borrowers and blackmailers. It was said that her attitude toward some of these people created recalcitrant animosity. A Paris paper which libeled her was fined and forced by the courts to publish a retraction.

The Mackays have always been ardent Roman Catholics. Among the many charities with which Mr. Mackay's name is associated was an orphan asylum for Catholic children in Nevada.

A Republican in his views, Mr. Mackay was always on terms of intimacy with the leaders of his party. His relations with Gen. Grant were especially close and his admiration for the soldier and the man tinged his own career. He gave $25,000 to the fund raised after Grant's death and offered to be one of the ten to make it $1,000,000; but while active in politics he never held a political office.

In 1888 both parties offered him the senatorship and though earnestly urged to accept on the ground of public duty by Roscoe Conkling and other leaders he steadfastly declined, believing he could serve his state and his country better by following the natural bent of his mind and rounding out those purposes whose development gave him world-wide fame.

HILL LEAVES A WIDOW.

Los Angeles Man's Estate Is Now Claimed by Woman Living at Northwood, Mass.

EXETER, N. H., July 20.—Fred Casewell, chairman of the board of selectmen of Northwood, and W. F. Flack, M. D., of that town, have gone to Los Angeles, Cal., to present the claim of Mrs. Charles Hill of Northwood, who expects to obtain a widow's share of the estate of Charles Hill, otherwise said to be Salem Charles, who died in California May 17 last, leaving an estate valued at $142,000.

Mrs. Hill firmly believes that the man who has left the fortune was her husband. She says he had a roving disposition and as she objected to extensive traveling they separated some 30 years ago, neither since having obtained a divorce.

Mrs. Hill claims to have last seen her husband 20 years ago when he visited her in Northwood. She says he wrote to her periodically, the last time from Australia, when he said he was doing well. Mr. Casewell and Dr. Flack are Mrs. Hill's nephews.

As soon as the other prisoners discovered his act they gave the alarm and Turnkey Smith ran in and cut him down.

YOUNG STRONG DID NOT LEAVE NEW YORK CITY

May Yohe Drops Pity and Swears Vengeance Upon Her Lover.

HE IS TO BE PROSECUTED

Friends Will Try to Induce Him to Be Taken to a Sanitarium — Vault Which Contained Her Jewels to Be Opened Today.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, July 20.—Putnam Bradlee Strong spent the greater part of today, it is said by those who know him, in a resoft in West Forty-sixth street. If he ever sought death, as he informed his promised wife, May Yohe, and his mother that he intended to do, he evidently has changed his mind.

Anger has followed grief in the mind of Miss Yohe as a result of Strong's desertion of her. When seen at the home of her mother in Hastings-on-the-Hudson today, she no longer expressed a desire for the return of the truant. The tears had dried in her eyes. Now she desires vengeance, and she declares she will prosecute Strong as sternly as the law will permit. Her counsel, Emanuel Friend, has been instructed to prepare a complaint charging Strong with larceny. She will, she says, cause his arrest tomorrow.

Grief-stricken and almost heartbroken, Mrs. W. L. Strong, mother of young Strong, is at the Grosvenor hotel in the care of a physician. Mrs. Strong has aged rapidly since her son entered upon his strange course and his last escapade has resulted in her complete prostration.

It is possible that young Strong will be persuaded to spend a few weeks in some sanitarium. Those who best knew him a few years ago refuse to believe that he has been quite in his right mind during the last year.

Vault To Be Opened Today.

It will be determined tomorrow afternoon exactly how deep inroads have been made upon the fortune of May Yohe. The vault in which her jewels had been stored will be opened in her presence by her counsel. She asserts that when she arrived in New York a few months ago she brought with her gems and jewelry worth $400,000. She fears Strong has disposed of more of them than he acknowledged, and she is now in possession of pawn tickets showing that at least $100,000 worth of her property has been pledged.

So far as could be learned tonight Strong has not been outside the Tenderloin district since he sent the tearful note to his mother and May Yohe, telling of his intention to end his life. He has been with convivial and congenial companions. Friends of Strong have made several attempts to get him to return to his family.

Unless May Yohe—or Lady Hope, as she now says she desires to be called—changes her mind, Strong will have very little to say about giving her up. Lady Hope today denounced Strong as a poltroon and a coward, upon whom she would fully revenge herself. On the day previous she was inclined to be forgiving; but when she convinced herself that she had been forsaken her attitude changed, and she declared that money would not purchase her forgiveness.

Actress Insists Upon Prosecution.

"I have fully determined to forget him," said Lady Hope. "That is, all between us is at an end. But for the wrong he has done me, he must suffer. I shall insist upon his prosecution on the charge of larceny. He took my diamonds without my consent, and he has pawned them for a tithe of their value, sending the pawn tickets to me. I believe the law will regard this act as that of a thief. My counsel is of the same opinion. I also want the world to know that for almost a year Strong has lived upon the bounty of my mother and myself. I had thought he had money, and that he was at least paying his own expenses in New York; but now I learn that he has simply been pawning my jewels and using the money thus obtained for his pleasure."

Emanuel Friend corroborated all that was said by his client. He asserted that he would cause the arrest of Strong, and that he believed Miss Yohe would prosecute him relentlessly.

RODE BEHIND MULES.

Secretary Root and His Party Carry Out Their Program.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21.—Secretary Root, Adjt.-Gen. Corbin, Gen. Leonard Wood and Col. Wallace Randolph, chief of artillery, visited Camp Ordway today to inspect the District national guard encampment now being held at Leesburg, Va. They fulfilled the program mapped out in The Gazette, by disregarding the usual methods of reaching the camp by rail, going instead by trolley car to Cabin John bridge and thence traveled the remaining 30 miles in a light mountain wagon drawn by mules. There were several relays of animals, so that no time might be lost.

The day was extremely hot, but several showers somewhat tempered the heat. The roads were very heavy, and it will be 12:30 Monday morning when the Secretary reaches the city on the return journey.

DOVER, ENGLAND, July 20.—Holbein, preparatory to an attempt to swim the English channel, which he unsuccessfully tried to do a year ago, today essayed to swim from Dover to Ramsgate, but owing to the strong tide, heavy sea and head wind he was compelled to abandon the attempt when within four miles of Ramsgate. He was immersed 4¾ hours, during which time he swam 18 miles.

KILLED BEFORE EYES OF WIFE AND CHILDREN

Jacob Huale, Prominent West End Man, Was Struck by Street Car.

FAMILY SAW ACCIDENT

All Were on Front Steps Watching as He Fell on Car Tracks Only a Few Yards Away—Was Known in Politics.

Before the eyes of his wife and children, who were sitting on the front steps of their home awaiting his arrival, Jacob Huale of No. 134 Steuben street, West End, was killed by street car No. 116 of the Southern Traction Company shortly after 8 o'clock last night. He was crossing the street in front of his house, and in some unknown manner he fell under the wheels and was crushed to death. He was a well-known politician and had been identified with the hotel and saloon business for many years in the West End.

Huale was 38 years old. He had been spending the afternoon with some friends in the rooms of the Lorle Maennerchor Singing society in the West End. He started home, and after descending a long flight of steps into Steuben street, waited on the siding for a few minutes, looking up and down the street.

He then started to cross the street, and did not seem to see the car coming along the west-bound track. He fell forward and landed under the wheels. He was killed instantly. Several firemen at No. 10 engine company saw the accident and hurried to the scene. A jack was secured and the wheels lifted from his body. His wife and children were horror-stricken after witnessing his death.

There was considerable difference of opinion as to the manner in which Huale was killed. Many of those who witnessed his death say that Huale committed suicide. Others say that he stumbled just as the car approached and fell under the wheels. No evidence could be obtained last night that he had any motive for destroying himself.

Huale had been ill for several months. He had insomnia and was also troubled with indigestion. It is said that he had recovered from both ailments and was in fairly good health.

His body was carried to No. 8 police station and the coroner was notified. Motorman Harry Bemirick was arrested by Officer Thomas Richardson and taken to the police station. Later bail was secured for him and he was released. Huale leaves a wife and three children.

DRIVERS AGAINST SUNDAY FUNERALS

WILL ADVANCE PRICE FOR SERVICES RENDERED ON SABBATH.

Teamsters Are to Unite in Effort to Get Better Play and Shorter Hours—Three Separate Meetings Were Held Yesterday.

Three separate meetings of organizations of teamsters and carriage drivers were held yesterday, all to arrange for securing better working conditions. The carriage drivers formed an organization at Moorhead hall last night and took steps to discourage Sunday funerals by advancing the price for service on that day. The Pittsburgh organization of the Team Drivers' International union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, held a mass meeting in the same building, and Teamsters' Local Assembly No. 1577, K. of L., met at Knights of Labor hall yesterday afternoon.

The Knights of Labor teamsters left the matter of drafting a new wage scale to be submitted to employers in a short time with a committee of three. The committee is to report at another meeting, Sunday, August 3. Some of the members of this organization now drive one horse for $12 a week and get $13 for driving two horses. They want an advance and enforcement of a shorter working day, one of the grievances being that some now work 14 and 18 hours a day without extra pay.

The meeting, which discussed the working rules, was open to all teamsters, and a good many made application for membership, after which the assembly held a session to elect officers and deal with the strike of members against the Pittsburgh Milling Company. A committee of the Pittsburgh local of the International Bakers' association reported to the meeting that the members will support the strike so far as is possible. A committee was appointed to meet the horseshoers tonight and ask them to refuse to shoe the horses of the Milling Company so long as the strike continues.

The new officers of Teamsters' assembly elected for the ensuing year are as follows: James Roden, master workman; P. M. Maloney, worthy foreman; James Carr, recording secretary; James O'Brien, financial secretary; William Felthorst, treasurer; James Woods, Charles Burchfield and James Madden, trustees.

The organization of Pittsburgh carriage drivers, who will form a local organization of the Team Drivers' International union, was completed at the meeting last night. Every livery stable in the two cities was represented. The organization was brought together by Organizer Calvin Wyatt of the American Federation of Labor, with which the Team Drivers' International union is affiliated. Robert Sheehan was elected president and Harry Behaman secretary. A committee was appointed to consider the wage question and report at the next meeting.

THE POPE WINS A LONG COVETED VANTAGE POINT

Has Long Awaited the First Negotiations With the United States.

DIPLOMACY IN ISLANDS

Washington Wondering Who Will Be the Apostolic Delegate at Manila Who Will Deal With Gov. Taft on Friar Question.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Now that it is certain that the second, and what is hoped will be the concluding, chapter of the negotiations for the sale of the friar lands to the United States will be conducted in Manila with an apostolic delegate acting for the vatican, the officials here who have to do with the negotiations are wondering who will be the pope's selection for the mission, which he regards as a most important one.

The opinion which is supposed to prevail in Rome, that an American will not be selected, prevails here. Mgr. Sbaretti, archbishop of Manila, who came to the United States several weeks ago, and who had several conferences with the president bearing on the question of the friar lands, is still in Washington. It is not known just when he will sail for the Philippines. When he came to the United States it was the understanding that he should become the apostolic delegate at Manila and conduct the negotiations with Gov. Taft and should act as the vatican's appraiser of the land of the religious orders.

Point Won by the Vatican.

Incidentally, there is much speculation here as to the outcome of the first occasion when the United States has conducted negotiations directly with the vatican. The vatican has long been eager to bring about this condition, and its consummation is a decided point for the church. The American mission, acting under the direction of the war department, greatly preferred to conclude the negotiations with the vatican at Rome; but the circumstances of the negotiations are such that it was thought best to leave negotiations temporarily at a standstill and to have them taken up at a future date with a representative of the church at Manila.

Gov. Taft will have an audience with the pope before his departure, July 24, but no extension of the negotiations at Rome will be effected.

From a Parisian View Point.

PARIS, July 20.—The Temps, commenting upon the negotiations between Gov. William H. Taft and the vatican, says:

"Notwithstanding the courteous language used by both sides, the vatican's reply to Gov. Taft's last note is tantamount to a rejection of the American offers, which amounted to nothing less than the conclusion of an indirect concordat with the United States. The signature of such a convention would have given the apostolic delegate in Washington a sort of diplomatic exequatur, permitting him to confer directly with President Roosevelt or the government without the intermediary of an American citizen, such as Archbishop Ireland. The vatican, in refusing to lend a hand to the gradual expulsion of the congregations from the Philippines, has at the same time stifled the germ of an American concordat, which would have been a triumph for the policy the pope has seemed so ardently to pursue since his advent."

LONDON, July 21.—The Rome correspondent of the Morning Post, dealing with the negotiations between Judge Taft and the vatican, contends that the authorities can unquestionably expel the friars from the Philippines without violating the treaty of Paris. What the vatican gained by its obstinacy, says the correspondent, is not clear, but it certainly will have lost about £1,000,000.

GARMENT WORKERS STRIKE.

Twenty-Five Thousand Are Out and 15,000 More Will Follow.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Twenty-five thousand East Side garment workers went on strike today and it is predicted 15,000 more will follow.

The Brotherhood of Tailors demands of the manufacturers a 26 hours working week, the payment of last year's union scale; a guarantee that the contractors or middle men will pay union wages and employ union men and also a guarantee that in case a middle man defaults they will get their wages.

Conferences between representatives of the union and the employers were held last week, but no settlement was reached. The employers were willing to grant the 56-hour working week, but were not willing to make any pledges as to the payment of wages by the contractors.

GOLD BEATERS STRIKE.

Will Quit Work Today on Demand for Increased Pay.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The delegate of the Gold Beaters' union to the Central Federated union reported to that body today that a general strike of gold beaters to enforce a demand for an increase of wages will go into effect in this and several other cities tomorrow. He said that the gold beaters intended to make the demand on September 1, but the employers, hearing of it, began to discharge men arbitrarily. Then it was decided to strike at once.

The gold beaters, he said, will demand $21 a week. At present the rates are irregular, from $12 a week up.

Passenger Strikes Freight.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 20.—The fast mail on the Pennsylvania railroad from New York to St. Louis crashed into an Indianapolis and Vincennes freight in the yards here tonight, injuring three persons and demolishing a half dozen cars on the freight. The freight was crossing the main line.

Peary Steamer in Port.

NORTH SYDNEY, C. B., July 20.—The Peary arctic steamer Windward, from New York July 14, arrived today. She will coal and proceed north tomorrow, being joined here by Mrs. Peary and her daughter.

THE CANAL DICKER WITH COLOMBIA

UNCLE SAM SEEKS MODIFICATIONS OF PROTOCOL.

Minister Concha Submits New Proposals to His Government—Hay's Object Is to Have Treaty in Such a Shape That It Will Be Ratified.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—Certain modifications which the state department desires in the protocol governing the construction of the proposed Panama canal before it assumes the shape of a treaty have been transmitted by Secretary Hay to Mr. Concha, the Colombian minister here.

These relate generally to questions of control and of sovereignty over the strip of land through which the canal, if the Panama route be finally determined upon, will be constructed. They are designed to bring the protocol more in harmony with the provisions of the Spooner amendment and to facilitate ratification by the senate.

Colombian legation officials do not feel that the instructions they now have are broad enough to authorize them to accept the modifications proposed by Secretary Hay without further consultation with the home government. Consequently the matter has been submitted by them to their government for further instructions. The aim of Minister Concha is to have the instrument in such shape that when it comes before the two houses of congress of Colombia for action it will receive favorable consideration by them.

PALMA STILL HOPEFUL.

Cuban President Takes a Cheerful View of the Economic and Political State of Island.

HAVANA, July 20.—The Union Espanola quotes President Palma as saying in an interview that he has great hopes that the country will emerge victoriously from the present crisis. President Palma said:

"If American syndicates have bought all our cigar factories and considerable land, besides a number of sugar estates, it is because they have faith in the economic future of Cuba. Moreover, Senor Terry, who is a planter, admits that a price of 3 reals per 25 pounds of sugar offers a profit which, though not very great, makes it worth while for those to cultivate sugar who can avail themselves of the best methods. Furthermore, we are approaching a day when sugar bounties will be suppressed and when Cuban sugar will be able to compete with the European product, and there are, besides, favorable symptoms of reciprocity with the United States. With these reasons as a basis we may hope that the economic future of Cuba will soon improve.

"When once the economic problem is solved the political situation will not present difficulties. The inexperience regarding official organisms is compensated for by the good sense of the people. Annexation is not the way to save Cuba, as it will not come when the present population of Cuba would benefit by it, but when the Americans choose—that is, when the influence exercised by the Latin element in Cuba shall have ceased."

LIFE UNDER WATER.

Holland Sailors Say It Is All Right Save for a Difficulty in Breathing in the Deep.

NEW YORK, July 20.—(Special.)—Visitors to the New York navy yard today were greatly interested in the submarine boat Holland, which, since its arrival from Annapolis, has been drydocked near the old dispatch boat Dolphin. Internal repairs are being made in the Holland, but these will not take more than a few days.

The craft looks like an egg-shaped boiler provided with an overhanging promenade deck and a screw. One of the sailors remarked that life on the Holland was all right, save for a certain sensation in the ears and difficulty of breathing when she went below water.

Herbert's Condition Better.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—(Special.)—The condition of Hilary Herbert, formerly secretary of the navy, who has been suffering from an attack of typhoid fever, has improved. He was removed today to Afton, Va., where it is hoped conditions will be more favorable for his rapid recovery.

THE MISSISSIPPI IS STILL RISING AND MILES WIDE

Damage Done by the Father of Waters Will Reach Many Millions.

CORN FIELDS LAID WASTE

Farmers Rich Two Weeks Ago Are Now Almost Penniless and Homeless—Great Islands Disappear Beneath the Waves.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Keokuk, Ia., July 20.—Exploration of the flooded districts of the Mississippi river from Keokuk south shows conditions beyond the appreciation or realization of any but those of long experience with the Father of Waters in its most destructive mood.

The situation is growing worse hourly. There is absolutely not the slightest chance of stopping this most costly flood in the history of the great river above St. Louis. A correspondent went all over the worst damaged area today in the steamer Silver Crescent, and found everywhere the greatest crops ever known under water deep enough to float a steamboat. People at the river cities give accounts of losses aggregating many millions of dollars. Hundreds of farmers, rich ten days ago, are today almost penniless and homeless.

Careful estimates gathered from the statements of some of the best informed people indicate the loss up to today at about $6,000,000, with every prospect of two or three millions additional by the rise above to come down. Most of this loss is on the Missouri side of the river, between Keokuk and Hannibal.

Island Has Disappeared.

Passing the water-lapped lumber yards of Keokuk, the mouth of the Des Moines river is nearly two miles wide. Normally, there are two mouths and an island delta, covered with farms, which are now under raging torrents.

Alexandria was protected to the last by the Egyptian levee, the breaking of which would send four feet of water all over the town. Gregory is submerged, except the White church, in which service was held today, the congregation from the country reaching the church by the railroad tracks, which are still above the flood. Other towns and cities on the islands are beyond the danger line.

Immense fields are seen in a great lake with the shore visible only with a glass, where the high bluffs bound the bottoms. Islands dotting the river at its normal stage have disappeared except for the tops of trees or a fringe of high shore willows slightly protruding. Occasionally a house on piles or stilts is seen, but only roofs rise to mark the centers of farms of corn. In the middle of the present river the tracks of the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern railroad, normally on the Missouri shore, are now a few inches above the water and under it in some stretches. Shore lights for pilots are standing in the midst of a waste of waters where steamboats can run over them. The river is five to ten miles wide and another lake 70 miles long is added to the map.

Millions Lost in Corn.

All this territory was practically covered with corn a fortnight ago, estimated to make 75 to a 100 bushels to the acre. Previous estimates of the loss have been greatly increased by the prospective yield being found much greater than ever before, experts telling of many farms that were good for 100 bushels to the acre before the flood. The loss is total. Experience is that if water stays 48 hours, even four inches under the surface, it kills corn and every stalk wet by waves perishes from rotting roots.

The height of the flood is indicated by an incident at Lagrange. The steamboat warehouse was well back from the river bank and stands high. A strong current and a gale caused the pilot to make an imperfect landing and the cornice of the roof of the warehouse was torn off by the forward guards of the Silver Crescent.

The river is rising all the time, six inches during the day in the immense area of 700 square miles, and the worst is to come by the extension of the flooded area by the water passing levees which it is now topping.

The chief flood thus far is on the Missouri side, from Keokuk to Louisiana with Canton and West Quincy as the centers. On the Illinois side are three continuous levees for 40 miles from Warsaw to Quincy above the water, which are thus far safe, but farmers are afraid of crevasse from muskrat holes, and every rod of the redoubt is watched day and night.

Break Means Great Loss.

The breaking of these levees would flood 175 square miles in Illinois and destroy $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 worth of corn. The levees below Quincy are in the same situation, except that they are lower and less firm.

Opposite Quincy, in Missouri, is still another center of special devastation which is appalling. North 12 miles to Lagrange and south to Holton, large prairies are still under water, reaching from the Illinois bluffs to the Missouri bluffs, at least 10 miles. Levees hastily thrown round farms are disappearing in a fierce current rushing from above through the draw of the Burlington bridge, carrying everything before it. Lone Tree prairie, 40 miles square, is deserted, the population having fled to Quincy and the bluffs on the Missouri side. Fabius river, 15 miles above Hannibal, is high and furnishes a route for the Mississippi to flank the levee, as the Fox river does, 40 miles up the Mississippi. This flanking movement makes even the highest Missouri levees ineffective.

Around La Motte, Silverton, Busch Station, Clemens and Ashburn, north of Hannibal, there is more wheat than at other places, and all in the stock is washed away. The chief crop there is corn, however, and there is the same ruin as at other places.

THREE DROWNED.

Heavy Rains Are Doing Great Damage in New York State—Cloudburst at Coventry.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 20.—A cloudburst last night at Coventry, this county, sent Lump creek over its banks, wrecking several mills and buildings at Afton. The family of James Cook, consisting of three persons, was drowned and their bodies not found till today. Three separate cloudbursts are reported in the county and much minor damage has been done.

FARMER, N. Y., July 20.—The most disastrous flood that has visited this portion of Seneca county occurred this afternoon. The rain commenced last night, but the heavy downpour came between 2 and 3:30 this afternoon, washing out everything in the path of the torrent it created. Wheat in the shock, gardens, roads and in some places bridges are washed out. At the Lehigh Valley depot on level ground the ballasting was washed from under the track in several places.

UTICA, N. Y., July 20.—Heavy rain during the past 48 hours has again overflowed the Mohawk river and the lowlands. It is believed the oats, hay and corn crops will be very small.

CARPENTERS WOULD NOT TALK ON SUNDAY

Committee Will Confer With That of Building Trades Council Some Other Day.

A committee representing the Building Trades Council of Pittsburgh yesterday waited most of the afternoon at headquarters to confer with a committee representing the Pittsburgh district council of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners for the purpose of arranging to have the carpenters renew affiliation with the Building Trades Council. The carpenters' committee failed to appear, and it developed later that there was no significance in this other than that the members objected to a meeting on Sunday.

John G. Snyder, chairman of the committee of carpenters, said afterward: "There are six days a week on which to hold such meetings, and I for one object to a meeting on Sunday." A conference will be held some day this week. A majority of the members of the carpenters district council is said to favor the affiliation.

This body controls about 6,000 workers and its affiliation is as important to the council as to the carpenters. The strike move of the carpenters this spring was somewhat handicapped by the organization having no affiliation with the other building trades. The proposed conference is to arrange for the basis of going back into the Building Trades Council, after which the carpenters' local organizations and the district council will take final action.

The carpenters' committee is N. F. Storm, newly-elected business agent along with A. M. Swartz, who was re-elected for the sixteenth time; A. F. Galley and John G. Snyder. The committee to represent the Building Trades Council consists of J. M. Ryan, secretary; Frank E. Smith, the painters, Thomas Edmonds of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters, Peter F. Mulvehill of the slate and tile roofers, W. B. Wilson of the marble cutters and setters, W. J. Slattery of the plumbers and E. McMillen of the ornamental iron workers.

FROM THUNDER MOUNTAIN

Capt. L. N. Clark Tells of Rich Finds on Property of Local Mining Company.

Capt. Lewis N. Clark of Pittsburgh, who is largely interested in mining in the Thunder mountain fields of Idaho, returned yesterday from a six weeks' trip through the fields, where he has been roughing it. The captain is having 20 new claims taken up in his own name in the field, and put an additional party of experts at work prospecting while there.

"We encountered a heavy snowstorm in Chilcoot pass the first days of July, while you were entertaining President Roosevelt here in torrid heat. Three feet of snow fell in the pass," said Capt. Clark yesterday.

His trip was in part to inspect the 780 acres of mining property owned by the Belle of Thunder Mountain Mining Company of Pittsburgh, in which he is a director. He says that this property, on which operations are well under way, is showing unexpectedly good returns in the assays.

This company is one of five concerns of Pittsburgh which are investing heavily in the Thunder mountain field. In all there are a dozen conberns now operating in the field. The Belle of Thunder Mountain Company has authorized capital of $3,000,000, and the Thunder Mountain Mining and Milling Company, $5,000,000. The other Pittsburgh interest is the Gold Ridge Mining Company, now a close corporation, controlled by Jennings Bros., the oil operators, Longfellow & Barnsdall and Guffey & Galey, the last two being close partnerships.

INTERNECINE STRIFE.

Bridge and Structural Iron Workers Fight Over Recent Elections.

There continues ugly internecine strife in the Pittsburgh organization, local union No. 3, of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers. The fight grew out of the election of officers, over which the union held court of its own. The court exonerated those accused of having a vote cast by a worker not in good standing. The finding of the court was not satisfactory to a faction in the organization, however. Four of the officers elected and re-elected have since resigned and a new election will be held on Thursday night.

President J. T. Dunn, who was elected to succeed J. P. Kelly, resigned, as did Secretary John McCabe and Business Agents George Boyd and David Tobin, elected to succeed themselves. Those who vacated their offices are now succeeded by candidates receiving the next highest vote in the last election. M. F. Cavanaugh, who was defeated by the vote for business agent, is acting as business agent. Michael Galentine, another defeated candidate for business agent, is to be a candidate at the new election for secretary. Dunn and McCabe, it is said, will not be candidates, but the business agents who resigned will be.

Boyd and Tobin will make a fight for reelection as business agent, with the idea of securing ratification for their policy in this fight, as well as for the successful conduct of their offices in the last year. It was these men who secured from the bridge and structural concerns a wage concession of 7½ cents an hour at the opening of the scale year this spring. The Pittsburgh organization of bridge workers has about 3,000 members.

RIOTING IS ENDED.

Soldier Stabbed by Negro at Leavenworth Has Chance of Recovery.

LEAVENWORTH, KAS., July 20.—The incipient riot, started late last night by several hundred soldiers from Ft. Leavenworth, who demolished the house of a negro following the stabbing of Eli Loucke, a cavalryman, by an inmate of the place, ended quietly soon after midnight, and today all was quiet.

A company of the Fourth cavalry arrived after midnight and rounded up soldiers who had not returned to the post. Today Loucke was reported to have a chance of recovery.

FIVE GOOD MEN SEEK THE HONOR TAYLER DROPS

Congressional Convention at Salem, O., This Week Promises a Pretty Fight

MAHONING HAS A CLAIM

That County Has Not Sent a Man to Washington Since 1874 and Thinks It About Its Turn Again—Speaker Leads.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Columbus, O., July 20.—The Republicans at the state capital are watching with deep interest the fight for congress in the Eighteenth district. Although the convention is but three days distant it is impossible to predict with any degree of accuracy what the result will be. All rumors of deals between the several candidates are strenuously denied, and it seems safe to assume that the convention will not prove a cut-and-dried affair. The gathering will be one of the most important of the kind ever held in the district, and will be prolific of excitement. Salem is preparing to welcome the visitors in regal style. Bands have been engaged, and the homes of the residents will be thrown open to the visitors, as the hotels will be filled to overflowing. The Youngstown delegation will be the largest and will occupy a train of 10 coaches.

The convention will be called to order at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and will be addressed by Temporary Chairman Robert W. Taylor of Lisbon, who resigned the congressional nomination which the convention is called upon to fill.

The candidates to succeed Mr. Tayler and the number of delegates each controls are as follows: T. Harvey Smith, 65; James G. Grant, 47; William H. Phelps, 26, all of Stark county; Charles S. Speaker, 99, Columbiana county, and James Kennedy, 80, Mahoning county. It will take 183 delegates to nominate. The nomination will go to either a Columbiana or Mahoning county man, and in case of a deadlock it is hinted that a dark horse will be chosen. Smith could settle the contest on the first ballot by throwing his strength to Speaker, which would give him 164 delegates. Any combination which the other candidates might enter into would avail nothing.

Kennedy's hopes of winning are based on a sentiment prevailing in many parts of the district that the nomination should go to Mahoning, as that county has not had a congressman since 1874. His delegates propose to remain steadfast to him to the last. He has made a tour of the district, during which he called on all the other candidates, and professes to be encouraged with the outlook. He declared with emphasis that he had not made any deals while on the trip.

Throwers of Eloquence.

Judge Arrell of Youngstown will present Kennedy's name at the convention, while Judge J. P. Fawcett of Canton will perform a like service for T. Harvey Smith. The name of Charles S. Speaker will be placed in nomination by Hon. Warren W. Hole of Salem, common pleas judge of the Ninth judicial district. It has not been announced yet who will present the names of Grant and Phelps.

Speaker, Kennedy and Grant are attorneys; Smith is a financier, while Phelps is an editor and publisher. His paper, the Alliance Review, is one of the strongest Republican organs in eastern Ohio.

The candidates are all men of recognized ability, and no matter who wins the district will be represented with credit in the halls of congress. Phelps impaired his chances by invading the home county of Speaker, in which he captured four delegates. It is absolutely certain that none of Speaker's delegates will go to him, no matter what the contigency might be, while it would not be surprising if his four outside delegates should go to the local candidate.

AT THALIA VILLA.

James Geary Had Merry Party In Tow Yesterday.

"Old Man," otherwise known as James Geary, entertained the advertising men of the different Pittsburgh dailies yesterday at Thalia villa, in Ross township. Mr. Geary, who is the advertising manager for Pickering, entertained his guests royally.

The invitations specified that the visitors would be taken on a tour of the "Valley of Rest," shown the celebrated bridge, the "Talking Monkey," and "Cave of Pleasure," and other attractions of the neighborhood. In the words of the "Old Man," that is "Nuf Ced."

RECORDER BROWN IS PULLING DOWN ABOUT $200 A DAY

Has a Little Side Line in the Shape of an Oil Gusher.

IS ONE OF THE THREE JOES

With His $10,000 a Year from City He Can Get Along for a Time. Said to Be Luckier in Guessing Oil Wells Than in Placing Politicians.

The principal topic, about the only one, in fact, that those interested in oil have had to talk about of late, is the gusher of the Three Joes Oil Company down in Ritchie county, W. Va., on the Elroy Wagner farm, along a branch of Big Knot run.

The well is now three weeks old and in that time has produced oil to the value of $24,000, and Recorder Joseph Owen Brown of Pittsburgh has a quarter interest in this spouter and in part contributes to the name of the Three Joes company. The other two Joes are, Joseph C. Trees and Joseph Ellsworth.

Anson H. Davis also owns a quarter interest and so long as he gets his share of the production he is not worrying because his parents failed to have him christened in honor of the interpreter of dreams.

Recorder Brown's income, for the past three weeks or since the well was drilled in, has not been less than $200 a day, and as the city pays him a salary of $10,000 a year it puzzles some people just why he should worry or lose any sleep. If he does, over returns from the "Yellow Book."

More Money Is in Sight.

The Three Joes gusher will be shot this week and this, it is expected, will increase the output to more than 1,000 barrels a day. The company will get the sand this week at No. 2, on the same farm, and materially increase its production unless the gusher has taken all of the juice out of the lemon.

Mallory Bros. will also be due in the sand with two test wells. It was this firm that loaned the Three Joes company the boiler, engine and rig, also the casing, to drill its test well, the present gusher. It is located near the Mallory company's line and is no doubt getting a part of its production from the neighboring lease, to the testing of which the last named company contributed so liberally.

Recorder Brown has the reputation of being a very lucky man in his oil ventures, no matter how unlucky he may be in the political shifts he makes. They say he can guess the chances on a piece of supposed oil property with far greater success than he can size up the attitude of Senator Quay toward him or the next move George M. von Bonnhorst will make.

Recorder's Turn to Be Funny.

The fact that the recorder is pulling out about $200 a day from the West Virginia territory recalls the explanation that was given concerning several of his absences from the city during recent stirring political times. It would be said he was down in West Virginia and then the political sharps would wink mysteriously and say and write alleged humorous things about the West Virginia attraction.

At this writing the attraction seems to have been one well worth cultivating. It is now Recorder Brown's turn to say humorous things.

If that Big Knot territory should prove to be a prolific pool Recorder Brown will have a mighty nice thing. On the other hand if it should prove that owing to a loose sand formation the gusher is draining a large area of territory, then he will have to take a look around, in company with his companions in oil ventures and make another venture if he wants to keep up that $200 a day gait. The new wells due in the sand today will tell the story.

GROUNDS ARE SAVED.

Fire Destroys Practically All the Dallas Exposition Building.

DALLAS, TEX., July 20.—Fire broke out early today in the exposition grounds, located in the suburbs of East Dallas, and in 30 minutes, the main exposition building, one of the largest buildings in the country, the music hall annex, the poultry building, the private buildings of the J. I. Case Plow Company, Southern Rock Island Plow Company and that of the Parlin Orendorff Company, were destroyed.

The loss will reach $100,000 with insurance of probably $30,000.

COMPANY PUTS UP MODEL TOWN FOR EMPLOYES

Lyndora Land Co. Is Owned by Standard Steel Car Interests.

TO BE SUBURB OF BUTLER

The New Town Is to Be a Pretty Village, With Wide Streets, Terraced Lawns and Big Lots With Houses in Center.

The Lyndora Land Company, composed of stockholders of the Standard Steel Car Company, has let the contract for the erection of the second lot of 100 houses on the property of the company adjoining the plant of the new car company at Butler, Pa. At the time the Standard Steel Car Company decided to locate at Butler, one of the reasons was that ground could be obtained which would enable the company to be independent of any speculator who might be inclined to take advantage of the great demand for property and ask prices that would prevent workingmen owning their own homes.

With this idea in view President John M. Hansen secured 300 acres in a body, and has divided it about equally, one-half to be used for the car works and the other half has been sub-divided into lots, each 50x110 feet, running to an alley and facing on 50-foot streets. Contracts have been let to Henry Shenk & Sons for 200 houses, the first 50 of which are to be ready not later than September 1.

New Town on Hill.

These lots are on the side hill above the works of the car company, and on the side of the works away from the town of Butler. The houses are to contain five and six rooms each, are to be fitted up with bath room, filtered water and natural gas. Each one will have porches.

Being situated in the center of a 50-foot lot and at a uniform distance from the street, with a terrace extending at a uniform height along each block, will make as pretty a little town as there is in Western Pennsylvania.

On the property there is a grove of native timber covering nearly 15 acres. It is the intention of the company to improve this and to use it as a park. The Butler street railway at the present time reaches the side of the property nearest town, and arrangements will be completed shortly by which they will obtain a right-of-way through the property, giving direct communication with the business center of the town.

Sell to Employes Only.

None of the houses or the lots are to be offered for sale to any but the employes of the works, the intention of Mr. Hansen and his associates being to provide suitable and good homes for their workmen, rather than realize an immediate profit as a result of the greatly-increased demand for houses.

To any employe of the works the houses will be offered for sale on very easy terms, or the vacant lots will be sold, subject to building restrictions, which will prevent the marring of the general effect.

Since the location of the Standard works in Butler there has been a great scarcity of houses and the land company's idea is to enable the company to offer its employes the assurance that they can obtain desirable homes at reasonable rentals.

A location has been selected for a school, work on which will not commence until next spring, as every effort is now being directed toward completing the houses.

SECRETARY TSENG ARRIVES.

New Member of Chinese Legation Brings an English Wife.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Hon. C. K. Tseng, secretary to the Chinese legation at Washington, who arrived at quarantine yesterday on the Umbria, came up to the city today. The secretary brought with him his wife, who was formerly Miss Burnett of London, England. Mrs. Tseng said she would spend the winter in Washington with friends. She was dressed in ordinary garb, but her husband had on his national dress.

"Liang Chen, the new minister to the United States, is a very clever man," said Mr. Tseng. "He will arrive next week, and I am sure he will be liked over here. Mr. Wu Ting Fang will be highly honored on his return to China."

MINERS' DEFENSE FUND MAY BE FAR SHORT OF NEEDS

Bituminous Miners' Contribution Can Not Reach $300,000 a Month.

LEVY MAY BE IGNORED

The Check-Off System, the Only Sure Means to Raise the Fund, Cannot Be Used Without Making Operators Liable for Conspiracy.

The miners' delegates are returning to their homes, after having voted to assess themselves for the defense fund of the authracite strike, and it is now a serious problem as to how the money is to be raised.

Pittsburgh operators declared last night that there is no legitimate recourse in the check-off, the only sure system of making the assessment general. Such a move would precipitate action of the operators of the strike districts against the other operators for criminal conspiracy and civil damages. The Pittsburgh district delegation will struggle with this question of assessments at a special meeting that will open this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The fund that will be created by the assessments will, at the maximum, be far less than the estimates sent out in the reports from the Indianapolis convention. According to the last reports of Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson of the miners there are in all less than 75,000 bituminous miners on whom the assessments can be made. Figuring $1 the week for each of these the sum will only be $300,000 a month to feed 147,000 idle anthracite miners and their families.

Some Districts Pay More.

The convention provided for a heavier assessment on some of the more prosperous districts, but this will add little to the aggregate. Instead of being added to, this aggregate will be lessened, because it is well known history of the United Mine Workers of America that such assessments are never met by anything like a majority of the men.

The reason is that the miners' officials fear to attempt and the operators would not tolerate the collecting of this through the check-off system. In years past a majority of the delegates to the national convention of the miners were contested on their seats by reason of their constituents not meeting special assessments that the organization did not attempt to collect through the check-off. Cases in court on the matter have been isolated, but under similar conditions in the past operators, who would be injured in the use of the check-off to supply strike funds for the men fighting them, have made the declaration that they would at once sue the operator recognizing the check-off for such purpose, for criminal conspiracy and civil damages. This has prevented such a move frequently, with the result that there have been few such cases in court.

No Check-Off Possible.

Pittsburgh operators declared last night that none of the bituminous operators would tolerate a check-off in this instance. In Pittsburgh there is no chance of employing the check-off, as the system exists only in modified form. By a written agreement there is provided for the checking-off of only 50 cents against the pay of each man, for any purpose whatever.

"If we were to consent to the check-off we would become parties to a scheme to raise funds to keep our competitors' operations idle. None of the bituminous operators are so foolhardy as to step into such a trap," said a leading Pittsburgh operator last night.

At the Indianapolis convention Pittsburgh delegates stated last night, National Vice President T. L. Lewis declared that this assessment matter would have to be planned very carefully to prevent complications with and for the operators of the bituminous fields. President John Mitchell stated that this would be carefully guarded against, in the resolutions which were to be presented to the convention.

The Pittsburgh delegates reached Pittsburgh last night on the Panhandle railroad. The delegates all took quarters in town to be present at the meeting this morning. The anthracite delegates passed through here, most of them being fairly well satisfied with the result of the convention. The Pittsburgh delegates figure on making the assessment through mine committees.

FELL FROM STREET CAR.

J. P. McElligott Was Seriously Hurt in Accident.

J. P. McElligott, a clerk living at No. 2303 Webster avenue, fell from a moving car near the corner of Craig street and Center avenue last night and sustained injuries, which may result fatally.

Center and Negley avenue car No. 405 was running at average speed when McElligott boarded it, and losing his balance he fell to the street on his head. He was unconscious when picked up. It was found that he had sustained a long scalp wound at the back of his head, with possibly some concussion of the brain. He was taken to his home. It is said that he gave chase for the car and boarded it when moving, after the conductor had twice stopped it, to let him on.

REORGANIZATION OF ASPHALT CO.

NEW CONCERN PLANNED TO TAKE OVER ALL THE PROPERTY.

Company Will Have a Capital Stock of $31,000,000—Preferred Stock to Be Issued Is to Be Convertible Into Common.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—The plan of reorganization of the Asphalt Company of America and the National Asphalt Company, which are in the hands of receivers, was made public tonight. The plan provides that the property of the two companies shall be acquired by a new corporation which is to have a capital of $31,000,000.

The new company can acquire the property and securities formerly belonging to the Asphalt Company of America and the National Asphalt Company, but in case the two committees shall be of the opinion that the acquisition of any such property or securities would not be to the interest of the new company such property or securities may not be acquired.

The outstanding collateral gold certificates of the Asphalt Company of America are to be reduced to about $27,000,000 by the exchange of certain certificates for common stock trust certificates of the new company and the remainder for preferred stock of the new company, at the rate of $500 of preferred stock for each $1,000 of collateral gold certificates.

Can Be Changed for Common.

Of the common stock, an amount equal to one half the preferred stock to be issued, and not exceeding $7,000,000 in par value, will be set aside in the hands of a trustee, to secure to the holders of preferred stock their right to convert the same into common stock.

Common stock to the amount of $4,500,000 is to be sold for cash at 50 per cent of its par value. This amount has been underwritten.

Such underwriting and the exchange of gold certificates of the Asphalt Company of America for stock as next hereinafter provided, will be accompanied by an adjustment and satisfaction by the underwriters and holders of such certificates of certain claims of John M. Mack affecting properties acquired by the National company in exchange for certain amounts of its shares prior to the merger with the American company. The properties thus released from these adverse claims are to become part of the assets of the new company.

Provisions for Stockholders.

Holders of the collateral gold certificates of the National Asphalt Company have the privilege of acquiring stock trust certificates for common stocks of the new company to an amount exceeding 40 per cent of the par value of the collateral gold certificates and upon the payment of $4 for each $100 of stock trust certificates to be acquired.

Holders of preferred stock of the National Asphalt Company have the privilege of acquiring stock trust certificates for common stock of the new company to an amount not exceeding 11 per cent at the par value of the preferred stock and upon payment of $4 for each $100 of stock trust certificates to be acquired.

Holders of common stock of the National Asphalt Company have the privilege of acquiring stock trust certificates for common stock of the new company to an amount not exceeding 4 per cent of the par value of the common stock and upon payment of $4 for each $100 of stock trust certificates to be acquired.

SOFT SPOT FOUND IN FLINTY HEART OF THE CONVICT

Tracy Braved Anger of His Pals to Save Life of a Woman.

RESULTED IN A FIGHT

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Butte, Mont., July 20.—Detective Jerry Murphy does not believe Harry Tracy is as bad as painted. In fact, Detective Murphy knows Tracy personally, having had "official business" with the outlaw several years ago, when the latter was operating in Butte and vicinity.

"It was before Tracy served a sentence in the Deer Lodge penitentiary," said Detective Murphy, "that he was implicated in a robbery here in Butte, and the man's actions on that occasion stamped him as having a conscience that could be touched and a heart that retained a tender spot.

"Tracy with several other desperate men held up an old woman on the highway in South Butte. They dragged her into an empty cabin, and after relieving her of all the money she possesses one of the highwaymen proposed that they cut her head off.

"'Dead women tell no tales,' he said to the others, 'and besides, we might as well kill her as not.'

"'Then you will kill me first,' said Tracy, 'for I have never seen a woman abused yet and I shall not allow this woman to be killed!'

"This interference from Tracy called for a savage retort from one of the other men and finally they came to blows. Others of the desperadoes parted them, but Tracy had his way and the woman was not murdered. She afterward appeared against the men who robbed her, one of whom—Ed Kelly—was sent to Deer Lodge to serve a 10 years' sentence.

"Tracy was not convicted for taking part in that crime. The woman who was robbed refused to testify against him, as he had saved her life.

"Tracy was afterward arrested in Livingston for robbery and it was from that place he was sentenced to the Montana penitentiary.

"I have always had a certain kind of respect for him, for a man who would not injure a woman has a spark of true manhood in him."

REOPEN TUESDAY.

Strike Headquarters at Wilkesbarre Closed During the Absence of President Mitchell.

WILKESBARRE, July 20.—The strike headquarters of the United Mine Workers in this city, which have been closed since President Mitchell went west, will be reopened on Tuesday when Mr. Mitchell and the district presidents will return to this city.

After a brief conference as to how relief funds shall be distributed the subordinate officers will return to their homes and take charge of the distribution in their respective districts.

When Mr. Mitchell returns Tuesday he is expected to remain here until the strike comes to an end. It is said now that the miners have defined their position, the Civic Federation will make another appeal to the coal operators to arbitrate.

ENRIGHT IS DEAD.

Delegate to A. O. H. Convention Jumped from Window While Insane.

DENVER, July 20.—Patrick Enright, a delegate to the Hibernian convention last week who became suddenly insane last Thursday and jumped from a second-story window, died at St. Joseph's hospital today. His heart was weak, and, although his only injury from the fall was a broken leg, he failed to rally from the shock.

Mr. Enright was born in Syracuse, N. Y., in 1868. For the past six years, he has been general organizer for the Ancient Order of Hibernians for the state of New York. The remains will be taken to Syracuse for interment.

CORONER IS INVESTIGATING

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW CASTLE, PA., July 20.—Coroner E. C. Porter this morning empaneled a jury consisting of Constable James Verner, T. J. Garvin, William H. Hill, E. C. Brown, Harry Watson and John W. Haley to hold an inquest tomorrow over the remains of Engineer Edward Murphy of Mahoningtown, who was killed in the collision at Eastbrook yesterday. The company will also institute an investigation.

According to unofficial information secured today the northbound train, No. 211, received orders here to pass the Oil City flyer at Graham Siding, two miles north of the Eastbrook bridge, where the collision occurred. At the same time telegraph orders are said to have been sent to the southbound train at Mercer to pass at Grahams. This message was repeated back to this city, it is said, but the crew of the southbound train maintains that the orders read to pass in the Moravia street yards in this city.

All the injured are doing well and will recover. The injured mail clerk, Harry Potter, is not so seriously injured as at first thought. In addition to the list of injured obtained last night, Miss Anna Stewart of Warren, Pa., a trained nurse, who was coming home to visit her parents, was injured about the head and neck.

Engineer Edward Murphy, who was killed, was one of the oldest engineers on the Pennsylvania lines, having been in the cab for the past 31 years. He leaves his widow and two children, Andrew G. Murphy and Miss Nellie, both of this city. He was 52 years of age and a member of the Mahoningtown Methodist church. He was also a member of Western Star lodge of Masons of Youngstown, and Lawrence Encampment, No. 52, Knights Templar of this city.

PERSONALS.

G. E. Tiren and T. J. Sherrott of Natal, South Africa, arrived in the city yesterday from Washington and are registered at the Seventh Avenue hotel. They are both young men and are civil engineers by profession. At the hotel last evening they said that they were born of English parents at Natal and had served in the English colonial army in the Boer war. "As soon as peace was declared," said Mr. Tiren, "we decided to make a tour of England, France and the United States for pleasure and also to improve our professional knowledge. We landed in New York five days ago and after two days there we went to Philadelphia and Washington for a day each. We have been deeply interested in all that we have seen and are particularly impressed with the immense buildings and the vast manufacturing interests. We expect to remain here for a short time and visit some of the mills of which we have heard so much.

"The letters we have received from home state that the South African people are accepting the conditions of peace with great satisfaction and are taking up with great energy their various business pursuits, which were interrupted by the war. A great many new railroads, mining and building enterprises are being undertaken, backed by American capital, to a great extent, and with Americans as engineers. The Cape to Cairo railroad, which is being pushed, will be of the greatest advantage commercially, and the magnitude of the enterprise will make it one of the wonders of the railway world.

"In South Africa, American supplies of all kinds have the preference over English and German manufactures, not only because they are considered better and more reliable, but also for the reason that they can be obtained in shorter time. Johannesburg has generally been published as the richest district down there, but it is believed by many that Pretoria will in a short time take precedence, as it is surrounded by three rich reefs of gold, coal and iron ore. These are being developed under the new conditions of government, which will not impose such oppressive and stringent laws upon foreigners who desire to obtain concessions and develop the country. The English rule will be of the greatest benefit to the people, but how long it will last is a question. It seems to be the general impression of the people that the country will eventually become a federated republic. As we crossed your beautiful Alleghany mountains today, I was very much impressed with the similarity of the country to that of South Africa. We have a great many just such mountains and rich valleys."

C. F. Towne of Buffalo, who is an agent for building supplies, and has just completed a business trip through Western Pennsylvania, is a guest at the Monongahela. Speaking of trade generally, he said last evening: "The building boom is at its height in the coal and iron centers in this section, and I certainly have never known of so much work in this line at one time. We are not slow up in Buffalo, either, and we are experiencing the boom there also. This is the result of the Pan-American exposition last year, which, contrary to the general outside impression, was a great benefit to the city. The great $1,000,000 plant of the Lackawanna Steel Company, the largest and most modern in the country, is now almost completed and will be in operation about September 1. This is a great independent plant and will have the advantages of lake ore and terminals, which will give it a great lead in competing with the trust. It will be of great value to Buffalo and adds considerably to the building boom just now."

G. Moretti of New York, the celebrated sculptor, is registered at the Hotel Duquesne. He is here on business connected with the erection of the new fountain to be placed in Highland park.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad handled 14 cars of excursionists from Parkersburg, W. Va., and intermediate points into the city yesterday, and sent out nine cars with an excursion party to Wheeling.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., July 20.—(Special.)—Returns from the majority of the precincts of the county show that the Democratic primaries Saturday resulted in the election of practically all uninstructed delegates. SHOT BY HIGHWAYMEN.

Four Men Held Up and Robbed and One of Them Is Wounded in Shoulder.

NEW CASTLE, PA., July 20.—(Special.)—John King of Wampum is lying seriously injured at the hospital here, the victim of highway robbers. He was shot last night by masked footpads about a mile south of New Castle Junction.

King, with Albert Wilson, Archie Young and Anthony Joseph of Wampum, were walking from Moravia to New Castle Junction to take a train home when they were held up by six masked men. All held up their hands but King, who started to run. A shot was fired, hitting him in the left shoulder.

The robbers then went through his pockets, took his gold watch and $4 in money. The others lost their watches and Wilson was also relieved of $10. The robbers then fled.

ADMIRAL WATSON BACK.

Thinks the Britons a Well-Balanced Race—An Incident at the Fourth of July Dinner.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Rear Admiral John C. Watson, who went abroad to attend the coronation of King Edward VII., returned today on the steamship St. Louis. He was accompanied by his son and Commander W. S. Cowles, whom he took with him as junior and senior aids respectively. Mrs. Cowles was also of the party. The admiral said he was struck with the calm way in which the English people took the news of the king's illness, and added that he thought they were a well-balanced race.

"I was disappointed at not meeting the naval officers of Great Britain," he said, "but they were so taken up with business that they had no time for anything else. Special Ambassador Whitelaw Reid told me, just before I left, that he would return in July. Lord Richard Grenfell asked me to introduce him to General Wheeler, who was present at the Fourth of July dinner, which I did, and it developed that an uncle of Lord Grenfell was on the general's staff during the civil war."

It is surprising what a little of the right kind of medicine will do. Small doses of Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant cure many of the worst colds.

BOLD BURGLAR MADE GOOD HAUL IN PENN AVENUE

Hotel of Philip Fitzgibbon Was Entered and Barroom Rifled.

ROBBER GOT $860 IN CASH

While Proprietor Was Out for Lunch Burglar Bored Hole in Barroom Door, Unlocked It, and Rifled Desk and Drawer—Boarder Is Suspected.

Another bold and daring robbery was added to Pittsburgh's already long list yesterday morning, when the hotel of Philip Fitzgibbon at No. 301 Penn avenue was entered and $860 taken. The burglars effected an entrance into the bar-room by boring small holes in the door leading from the hallway, and, knocking out the chips, reached through and unlocked the door from the inside. They went to the desk where the money had been temporarily placed and took $850 in cash. When going to a small drawer in the sideboard they took $10 that had been left there for change. This is the second time this year that Fitzgibbon has been robbed.

It is evident that the robbers had some knowledge of Fitzgibbon's habits and knew of the places he kept his money. Edward McMurray of Ravenswood, W. Va., a boarder, who says he is a carpenter, was placed under arrest by Detectives Edward Barry and Harry Jones, and locked up as a suspicious person. Although the evidence seems to point at him he denies any connection with the affair.

Put Money Away.

Philip Fitzgibbon has been accustomed to working in the saloon on Saturday nights for many years. After closing hours, with Charles Conwell, a barkeeper, he would clean up the room. After completing this work he counted the receipts of the week. This time they amounted to $860. Ten dollars of this amount he placed in the drawer of the sideboard for change on Monday, and the balance he placed in two small cigar boxes and locked them in a desk in a little office in the front part of the barroom.

The view of the interior of this office is not shut off from the street. Not even a curtain on the window conceals it and anyone passing at the time could have seen Fitzgibbon place the money in the drawer. It was about 2 o'clock when the money was put in the desk. Fitzgibbon always took this money to his bedroom when he retired.

Fitzgibbon and Conwell have been accustomed to going out to lunch after cleaning up. As was their custom they left the place about 2:30 o'clock. They were gone about an hour. After leaving the restaurant Conwell and Fitzgibbon parted, and the latter came directly to the hotel.

Robbery Discovered.

He entered by the side door in Third avenue, which is open day and night, for the convenience of the boarders. He went to the barroom door, leading from the hallway and started to open the door with his key.

To his surprise, he noticed that the door leading into the yard from the hall was closed and bolted. He opened this door, and was startled to find the floor covered with borings and chips. Instantly it flashed on him that the place had been entered and he inspected the barroom door.

A hole about two inches in diameter had been bored along side of the lock. Running his hand through the hole he opened the door and went to the desk where he had left the money. The desk had been broken open and the money was gone. He went to the drawer in the sideboard and the $10 had also been taken.

The police were immediately notified. Lieutenant James McAvoy went to the scene and after making an investigation left the place.

Fitzgibbon went to his bedroom to notify his wife of the robbery.

McMurray's Strange Action.

While talking to his wife, he remembered that McMurray had acted strangely on the evening before. He had asked Fitzgibbon to sell him some beer Sunday as his brother was going to pay him a visit Sunday from Ravenswood, W. Va. Fitzgibbon refused to do this, but told him that when he returned from lunch he would place the beer in the hallway for him, and he could get it in the morning.

McMurray said that his brother was coming from Ravenswood at 5 o'clock. This was about 9 o'clock and he said he was going to retire. He was seen at 10 o'clock standing on the corner by Fitzgibbon. When Fitzgibbon informed his wife of the robbery she then remembered having seen McMurray standing in the hallway about 3:10 o'clock with some tool or instrument in his hand. He was going toward his door.

Fitzgibbon did not go to McMurray's room, but out into the street. While walking about Penn avenue, thinking over his loss, he heard Robert Manion, a storekeeper, adjoining his place moving about.

Fitzgibbon learned from him that he had seen McMurray standing in the street at 4 o'clock, and that he had heard a noise in the barroom at 3.

Long Way to Depot.

At 5 o'clock McMurray came downstairs and told Fitzgibbon that he had overslept himself and possibly missed his brother. He said that he had gone to bed at 9 o'clock, and had just gotten up. McMurray said that he was going to the station, but instead of walking toward the Baltimore & Ohio station he went out Penn avenue to the Point bridge. He was followed by Fitzgibbon. He went out to Duquesne way, and then back to Third avenue and passing the hotel went to the station.

He came back later with three men. He said that two of his brothers had decided to visit him instead of one as previously arranged.

The third man was a friend of his. By this time Detectives Barry and Jones arrived at the hotel and after questioning McMurray, they decided to place him under arrest. McMurray was firm in his denial that he had any knowledge of the disappearance of the money. He said he had never left the room during the night in spite of the fact that he was seen by Mrs. Fitzgibbon in the hallway at 3 o'clock and on the corner at 4 o'clock by Robert Manion.

McMurray has been in this city three weeks and during that time he has been living at the Fitzgibbon hotel. He said that he was a carpenter, but he has not been working on account of illness. He had a small collection of tools. It comprises five bits, of various sizes, a brace, screw driver, and a new hatchet.

Fitzgibbon says that McMurray was thoroughly familiar with his habits on Saturday night and Sunday morning. The detectives are of the opinion that McMurray did not take the money, although he has been acting in a suspicious manner. A thorough search of McMurray's room was made, but the money was not found.

Fitzgibbon has been a victim of thieves before. In January last he had a $110 diamond pin taken from him at the Bijou theater. Although the thieves were captured the police never returned the diamond to him.

QUAYISM IS FATAL TO THE DEMOCRACY

FORECAST OF RESULT OF CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN.

Opposition Will Be Disappointed in Hope of Scoring a Gain—Probably Will Not Carry More Than Three Districts, and Possibly Only Two.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—The upheaval in the arrangement of the Republican state ticket in Pennsylvania and the ratification of the new deal by the late convention is another demonstration of expert American politics reduced to an exact science. In carrying a good working majority in the lower house of the Fifty-eighth congress, which will lay down the lines upon which the presidential contest of 1904 will be made, Pennsylvania may be regarded as an important factor.

In the congressional fight of 1900 the Democratic representation fell to a minimum of four. Thus, reduced to hardpan, any change necessarily would be a Democratic gain.

In his forecast of the congressional possibilities of Pennsylvania, Senator Quay based his calculations upon the vote of 1901 in the districts as constituted under the new apportionment of 32 instead of the present 30. With the same vote, or anything approximating it, in the approaching battle for partisan control, the Democrats might count upon a positive gain. The proverbial uncertainty of off-year campaigns evidently was in this case a factor. Therefore, to avoid any chances, the festive element had an important bearing in the equation.

Danger Points Tabulated.

The senator's private figures setting forth the danger points showed that if the vote of 1901 were repeated next November the Pennsylvania congressional delegation in the Fifty-eighth congress would stand:

REPUBLICAN.
Districts 1 to 6—Philadelphia.
District 7—Chester, Delaware.
District 9—Lancaster.
District 14—Wayne, Susquehanna, Wyoming and Bradford.
District 15—Tioga, Potter, Lycoming, Clinton.
District 17—Perry, Juniata, Mifflin, Huntingdon, Fulton, Franklin, Snyder, Union.
District 18—Dauphin, Cumberland, Lebanon.
District 19—Cambria, Blair, Bedford.
District 22—Westmoreland, Butler.
District 23—Somerset, Fayette, Greene.
District 24—Washington, Beaver, Lawrence.
District 25—Erie, Crawford.
District 27—Armstrong, Indiana, Clarion, Jefferson.
District 28—Mercer, Warren, Forest, Venango, Elk.
Districts 29th to 32d—Allegheny. Total, 23.

DEMOCRATIC.
(Districts, new apportionment, giving Democratic majorities in 1901.)

8	Montgomery and Bucks Democratic plurality	2,758
10	Lackawanna	4,125
11	Luzerne	6,214
12	Schuylkill	1,897
13	Berks and Lehigh	7,890
16	Northumberland, Montour, Sullivan and Columbia	3,732
20	York and Adams	2,244
21	Center, Clearfield, Cameron, McKean	360
26	Northampton, Monroe, Carbon and Pike	1,695

The vote of 1901, however, can only be regarded as the extreme adverse side of the situation. The congressional vote in 1900 gave Republican pluralities in the new districts named.

8	Wanger	6,880
10	Connell	1,938
11	Palmer	3,024
12	Pattigson	1,624
20	(as now constituted) Lewis	798
21	as now constituted	978

Where Gains Will Be Made.

The new Twenty-sixth gave Mutchler 1,695 Democratic plurality. In this district the Republicans have a fighting chance, as Republican majorities have shown. The party united on a winning ticket, the off-year vote of 1901 is not likely to stand for the congressional vote of 1902.

The Republicans of Pennsylvania will not only carry the certain 23, but probably six out of the nine in the Democratic column, with a fighting chance in the Twenty-sixth under the prestige of a strenuous president pledged to a renomination by the Republicans of Pennsylvania in convention assembled, and the push of prosperity, high wages, good profits and expanding markets at home, in our dependencies and the world at large. This would reduce the Democratic minority in the Pennsylvania delegation of the Fifty-eighth congress from four in the Fifty-seventh, to three, and possibly two, in the Fifty-eighth congress.

Such is Quayism. More of it would put the Democratic party out of existence as a national organization, except in name.

CROWD WENT AFTER RAIN

Traction Parks Were Well Patronized, Especially During the Evening.

While the rainstorm yesterday kept down the early afternoon attendance at the traction parks, it was responsible for a large increase in the evening. Extra and trail cars that had been taken off about 3 o'clock were rushed out again after supper to accommodate the people eager to get to Southern, Calhoun, Oakwood and Kennywood parks.

The attractions at Southern were the Royal Austrian orchestra, A. Rigo, conductor, and Mlle. Zeno, the aerial chaffeuse, who made a successful ascension and parachute jump, landing more than a mile distant from the park. The orchestra is a Budapest institution, and has been in this country but four weeks. There was much interest in Conductor Rigo, scores of persons asking him if he was the Rigo who ran away with the Princess Chimay.

General Superintendent John Murphy of the Pittsburgh Railways Company was at the park and planned a number of improvements. More seats will be put around the music pavilion. He also decided to run all the Knoxville hill top cars that now have their terminus at the hill top barn in Mount Oliver through to Southern park every Sunday. The change will give Knoxville, Beltzhoover, Brownsville avenue and Washington avenue people a chance to get to Southern park for one fare, without change of cars.

Calhoun park had Helen May Butler's Ladies' Brass band, which gave two good concerts. The dancing pavilion was used in the afternoon, and the auditors were comfortable, despite the rain.

The City band of Huntingdon was the attraction at Oakwood. With the band came a large crowd of excursionists. Rocereto's Concert band and Maj. R. H. Hendershot and son, drum and fife team, were the attractions at Kennywood. Maj. Hendershot, who is known in war history as the drummer boy of the Rappahannock, gave a number of clever imitations, assisted by his son.

Pending improvements at Oakwood, Kennywood and Southern parks will be the only two traction parks at which entertainments will be given this week. Kennywood has a vaudeville bill, afternoon and evening. Southern has Helen May Butler's Ladies' Brass band.

TWELVE PAGES.

Heavy Flood Losses.

Flood damage in the upper Mississippi region has reached most serious proportions. The losses already aggregate millions of dollars and the estimates may have to be swelled greatly by the destruction of crops. Corn in particular is suffering, for experience in Iowa and Illinois teaches that where corn is partly submerged it is ruined by rot. The disaster is local, of course, but it will require a generous spirit on the part of the remainder of the country to make the farmers of the inundated district feel that it has been a year of prosperity. It is fortunate for the country that other districts will more than make up for the crop losses where the floods are, as another short corn year, with its accompanying inflation of meat prices, would bear severely on those least able to pay extravagantly for food.

Where Safety Lies.

A French scientist has been making some investigations calculated to demonstrate the uncertainty of serumtherapy and the immunity supposedly conferred upon persons who have survived certain maladies. For example he has obtained records of 268 persons who have twice had smallpox, a few who have had it three times and one who has suffered from it seven times. He has records also of persons who have taken measles, scarlet fever and other contagious diseases more than once.

Naturally the inference drawn by the French savant is that quarantine of infectious cases is of the utmost importance in preventing their spread, and he regards disinfection of premises after the disease as the second measure of value. General good health is in some degree a protection against casual contagion, as it may be met in public places or conveyances, but the only sure means to avoid epidemics are isolation of patients during illness and thorough disinfection afterward.

It is in the face of such facts that the Pittsburgh authorities refuse to disinfect after contagious diseases or to adopt the most generally commended sanitary precautions. Serumtherapy has done much good, no doubt, but it cannot be depended upon, either as a universal cure or a universal preventive.

Retirement of Gen. Brooke.

There will today pass to the retired list of the army one of the most distinguished veterans of the service and a soldier of whom the nation, and especially his native state of Pennsylvania, has every reason to be proud. Maj.-Gen. John R. Brooke, having reached the age of 64 years yesterday, will be placed upon the retired list, and an active military career extending over nearly a half century of the country's history will come to an end. With the exception of Gen. Miles, Gen. Brooke is now the only officer on the active list who reached the grade of brigadier general during the civil war. He has been a soldier practically all his life, entering the service as a volunteer captain in a Pennsylvania regiment at the outbreak of the war of the rebellion. His record in that war is a brilliant one. He was wounded four times and breveted three times, coming out at the close a brigadier general of volunteers, and as a lieutenant colonel in the regular army under the army reorganization in 1866. During the late war with Spain he was in command of the Provisional army corps at Camp Thomas, Ga. Later he was placed in command of the first army corps, and was also in command of the department of the East. He was made special commissioner under the peace protocol to arrange for the evacuation by the Spanish troops of the island of Porto Rico.

Gen. Brooke has never known any other occupation than that of soldier, and throughout all his distinguished career he has borne himself with the courage, patriotism and valor of a true American. Pennsylvania is proud of his record, and while he has never sought political honor, preferring the duties of a soldier, his name has more than once been mentioned in connection with positions of honor and political importance. In the prime of vigorous health and manhood he passes to the retired list under the military laws of the government with escutcheon untarnished.

Littlefield and the Trusts.

When the evidence is sifted there is not much of fact left on which to base the declaration that Congressman Littlefield has been constituted by the president his special representative in congress to fight the trusts. The dull season in Washington is on, with the president and the cabinet absent from the capital. With a scarcity of topics of real interest and few developments at the usual news centers, a mole hill of truth has been swelled into a mountain.

Congressman Littlefield has introduced certain anti-trust bills. These were held up in the committee on judiciary. Mr. Littlefield frequently consulted with the president, who had announced his views in his message to congress. The president through these consultations or conversations knew of the Littlefield bills, and being interested in the subject to which they related, was kept informed of their status. And so, when congress was on the point of adjournment and it was certain the bills would not be reported to the house, the president, in a purely informal conversation, encouraged their author to persevere. That is as near as he came to constituting Mr. Littlefield the anti-trust leader.

Littlefield, through perseverance, may become the anti-trust leader in congress. Leaders, however, are not made; they grow. Mr. Littlefield cannot be made the leader in the anti-trust fight or any other fight, and to represent that he has been designated as the leader can only do harm to him and to the cause he is championing. Congressmen are human and are not unlikely to resent the reports that have been circulated.

It is not at all certain that Mr. Littlefield's bills have the administration's indorsement, except as the administration indorses the general purpose to curb trusts. Other measures may be found better suited to the accomplishment of that object. When congress meets in December there may be more light on the subject, but until the courts dispose of the cases brought by Attorney General Knox, framers of anti-trust legislation must feel their way.

John W. Mackay.

John W. Mackay, dead in London as a result of heat prostration, was a typical figure in American financial history. Beginning with nothing, Mr. Mackay labored for the means of subsistence while he studied affairs. Gold mining in California and Nevada brought him great wealth. Natural ability and the study he had made of business enabled him to invest his capital where it produced more. Of late years his fame and financial operations have been international. His life is an example to youth of what may be accomplished by the man who is ready to welcome fortune when she knocks at his door. Not every man may have precisely the opportunity presented to John W. Mackay, but for every young American there is an opportunity to strive and achieve.

Morgan and the Kaiser.

If it really be a fact that Emperor William of Germany has severely criticised the accomplishments of the American financier, J. Pierpont Morgan, it will prove another case of different viewpoint in reaching a conclusion. The emperor is reported to have said, in a letter to a friend, that Mr. Morgan struck him as being a rather ordinary, narrow-minded sort of person, with much ambition but very little real understanding of the great problems of life. To William, whose mental bias is along the lines of German theoretical and ethical culture, the big, blunt financier seemed a man of very shallow resources.

The emperor represents largely the results of modern scholarly research in the effort to apply remedies to existing social and economical evils. For Mr. Morgan these problems have no interest from their merely speculative and theoretical side. He is too busy dealing with conditions to plunge very deeply into the question of causes. Naturally enough he and the German emperors would not meet on common ground. It does not follow, however, that Morgan is less a contributor to the world's advancement, in his practical way, than Emperor William with his elaborate theories about how things ought to be done.

Germany's Meat Supply.

The new meat inspection law is about to become effective in Germany. It is expected to cause a large decline in the exports of American beef and pork to the kaiser's dominions, but this fact is not disturbing American exporters nearly as much as it is the German consumers. There are other countries to which our surplus meat may be sent, but the vexatious provisions of the new law will curtail the German supply from all outside sources.

To begin with, the importation of canned meats and sausages is forbidden. Then there is an elaborate and far-reaching system of inspection of animals and meats, official supervision of the whole process of preparing and preserving meats, making the business as precise and exacting as scientific sanitary erudition can make it. This of itself will increase the cost of home-grown meats and the difficulty of utilizing the already inadequate supply. Naturally there is much opposition to the new system on the part of butchers, provision dealers and consumers in the Fatherland.

Foreigners who send meat to Germany will be required to observe a long list of regulations. Fresh meat must be in whole carcasses, for example. Cattle and hogs may be split in two, but the halves must be left together, and always accompanied by head, lungs, heart and kidneys. Calves are under another rule. They may not be split. Cow beef must have the udder attached, and the tongue must go with pork carcasses. These are sample requirements, but perhaps the most important of all is the prohibition of all meats preserved with borax, boracic acid, or other salts which have been used hitherto very extensively as preservatives.

The importations of cured meats in Germany fell off in value from $10,971,800 in 1898 to $4,474,400 in 1901. The new restrictions will cause a further diminution. The Berliner Tageblatt says that old stocks of preserved meats have become exhausted, and a meat famine is in sight. On June 14 many butchers at Hamburg literally had no beef to sell, because Denmark had sent only a few cattle and Germany and Austria had furnished only a meager supply. On the same day Berlin had to pay actual famine prices for the few animals to be had.

But if Germany refuses American meat, other countries are glad to get it. United States consuls in South Africa, for example, report an urgent demand for food animals of all sorts, dead or alive. It is Germany that will suffer most from the new meat inspection system.

People Who Disappear.

One of the most perplexing problems with which the police and detective authorities have to deal is that of locating the numerous people who mysteriously disappear. Of course, in every large city there are dozens of "losts" every week, principally children, who are nine times out of ten, promptly found and returned to their homes. But it is not these cases that give the police so much trouble. There are recorded in the bureau of police of nearly every city in the country the names of lost people for whom the aid of the law officers has been invoked to find and about whose disappearance there hangs a veil of mystery which baffles the skill of the best detectives. The sequel of just such a case has been furnished within the past few days, by the receipt of a letter from a young man who mysteriously disappeared from the streets of Baltimore on the night of December 24 last. He was a young Virginian who had come to Baltimore with a carload of cattle to sell. After transacting his business, in company with a friend, he attended a theater. Leaving his friend on the street car at midnight he signified his purpose of going to his hotel and going to bed. That was the last seen of him by anyone who knew him. Despite the best efforts of the police and detective forces of Baltimore, assisted by those of other cities, this young man dropped as completely out of life as though the earth had opened and swallowed him.

On Saturday last his mother received a letter from him dated in South Africa. There is promised a full explanation of the case later on.

The first wonder in such cases is that so many people, both men and women, should seek this means of inflicting pain and distress upon their friends. The even greater cause for surprise is that, with our modern methods of police and detective efficiency, it is possible for people to drop so completely out of sight as not to leave behind them a single intelligent trace of their whereabouts.

SATURDAY RUSH FOR RURAL REST

So Great as to Make It Hard for Outside Passengers to Enter the City.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, July 20.

Traffic on some of the railroads centering in New York, by ferry or directly, was almost paralyzed yesterday by the Saturday half-holiday. At noon thousands of business concerns, big and little, discharged their employes for a rest, which will last until tomorrow morning. Many of the released ones made directly for the railroads, to spend their holiday in the country. The railroad authorities were prepared for this rush, so far as getting the excursionists out of the city was concerned. On some roads, in particular, every old ark of a car had been dragged out of limbo, brushed up and placed in service. Trains composed of conveyances which looked as if they might have been used at the beginning of the last century, stood perkily in the depots, and, when filled with passengers, departed with a hullabaloo of wheezes that was quite in keeping with the ancient vintage of the cars. All kinds of cars were used. Some of them were brand new, and others were painted in weird colors, while still others had the small windows which used to be regarded as the correct thing for passenger coaches, but nowadays are generally confined to the "caboose." This is all by the way, however. The main point was that there were so many trains leaving the terminus in Jersey City that there was hardly any room for incoming trains. The unfortunate traveler toward New York found it a hard matter to get to his journey's end, although he had been brought near enough to be tantalized, and to feel that only a course of powerful vituperation would relieve his mind. On every railroad there is the same difficulty for certain hours on Saturday afternoon. Perhaps there is no way to prevent it. The exodus of men, women and children is so enormous that only extraordinary accommodations could make it possible to handle them all without a hitch now and then. After all, as there are so few persons coming into New York, compared with the crowds going out of it on Saturday, perhaps it is ungracious to grumble. Nevertheless, the sufferers do grumble, and very hard, too.

Common New York Curiosity.

Talking about crowds in New York, there was a striking illustration in Broadway last evening of the celerity with which a large mob will assemble when anything untoward happens. A Broadway car was bowling along southward. A square-jowled man driving a large wagon loaded up to the second-story windows with mineral water, drove across the tracks. The motorman perhaps supposed that the wagon would get out of the way, and he did not shut off his electric power as he bore down upon it. The car caught the wagon squarely amidship, knocking it aside in a tremendous shower of smashing glass and exploding carbon waters. The excitement was great. No one in the car was hit, but the broken syphons lay all over the roadway, and several policemen were loudly anxious to arrest somebody. In an instant there was a gathering of nearly 1,000 persons, and before things were straightened out there were many more than 1,000. And yet, there was no one hurt, no one in a fight, and no one arrested. Just common New York curiosity was responsible for the assemblage.

Plenty to Gossip About.

New York has plenty of sensations to gossip about just now. The disappearance of Putnam Bradley Strong, the mysterious Latimer burglar fatality, the Newport scandal and the campaign of "Big Chief" Devery, are all discussed in the hotel lobbies and clubs, and after they are disposed of there is a multitude of lesser matters to be discussed. All these things make excellent pabulum for the "silly season" in the metropolis.

John Jacob Astor's New Yacht.

Yatching is growing in favor as an amusement as fast as automobiling. Now it is said to be Col. John Jacob Astor's intention to have the fastest ocean-going yacht afloat. That it will be a marvel of elegant comfort in its cabin and other appointments is a foregone conclusion. Why should a multi-millionaire Astor have less? The vessel is to cost half a million dollars, which is a fair price for a small boat, and it is said, too, that the colonel will not object if the figures run very much higher than that. Lewis Nixon, who was leader of Tammany hall for a short time, but builds ships better than he controls Democratic heelers, is to construct the yacht. Its dimensions will be 240 feet on the water line, 280 feet over all; beam, 32 feet, and draught, 16 feet. She will be fitted with six Mosher boilers, four in one compartment and two in another. There will be two quadruple expansion engines with a combined horsepower of 6,000, which are calculated to drive the vessel at 22½ knots an hour.

The Anti-Automobile Crusade.

The war on overfast automobiles is waxing warmer from day to day. The holding of Howard Colby, one of the most prominent young clubmen in New York, for trial at special sessions, has created a decided sensation. He is charged with running his Panhard on Fifth avenue at a speed of 18 miles an hour. If he should be found guilty in the higher court he will only be fined; but there is a strong sentiment in this city that such offenses should be punished by imprisonment, without the option of a fine. It may come to that yet.

Governorship a Costly Luxury.

City Comptroller Grout has said he does not want to be governor of New York because he cannot afford it. He says it costs Gov. Odell $100,000 a year, and the honor is beyond the means of anyone not wealthy. While it may be true that Gov. Odell spends the sum quoted in entertaining and in other ways, to uphold the dignity of his office, it is well understood that the cost to the governor depends a great deal on the man in office.

Even the Tag Game Dangerous.

A little girl in Harlem was playing "tag" when she fell on the sidewalk. She complained of a headache, and the doctor who was called in prescribed iced cloth applications. Soon afterward the child died, and then it was found that she had fractured her skull. Of course, millions of children have played "tag" without severe injury; but this case shows how simple a game will sometimes end tragically.

Moonlight Voyage Delights.

The rivers and harbor of New York are beautiful these moonlight nights. Evening excursions are given on a score of different steamboats and barges, and the flashing of lights from a hundred points on the great craft as they ply up and down, with the strains of music coming fitfully over the water, suggest fairyland, particularly if one is in his early twenties. Even when there is rain—as there is occasionally—the excursion steamers do not give up. There are covered decks for the dancers and plenty of cozy corners for spooning couples, and the air is not likely to be too chilly for comfort, rain it ever so hard. New York is a great place for simple pleasures, and the moonlight excursion on the rivers or out to sea is one that appeals with particular force to the metropolitan fancy.

Man Who Would Restore Campanile.

Giovanni Morosini, who will always be remembered by many people as the man whose daughter set the fashion in modern times of wealthy girls running away to marry grooms, says he will give some money toward the restoration of the Campanile in Venice. It was reported that he would give $100,000, but he declared that he had no idea of giving so much. Mr. Morosini is a broker in this city and a very rich man. He was born in Venice, but older men in Wall street remember that he was always close by Jay Gould when the father of the present Gould family was such an important factor in the financial world of America. Mr. Morosini carries his years well and is as fine a looking man as one can meet in the Wall street district today.

An Innuendo on City Hall.

They caught a thief in City hall yesterday; and one blase New Yorker tonight was unkind enough to remark, musingly: "Well, is that the first time?"

Gen. Kitchener in Museum Wax.

Gen. Kitchener now gazes stonily at the visitor to the Eden musee. The likeness is said to be a good one, and the expression of military sternness, combined with the tired look of a "heavy dragoon," is well conveyed. The Eden musee is so favorite a resort of visitors to New York that the addition of a notable figure to the wax collection is something distinctly worth chronicling.

New Way of Earning a Living.

A new industry has appeared in New York. An elderly woman, evidently of German extraction, was walking along one of the avenues yesterday afternoon with a large bundle of long, fresh grass in her apron. It was as much as she could carry, and she had packed it in tightly. She was selling it to teamsters for their horses by the mouthful. Whenever she saw a team standing by the curb she would step to the horses' heads and feed them grass until the driver appeared. Then she would hold out her hand appealingly, and in most cases received a few pennies. The horses evidently enjoyed the dainty grass, which, doubtless, brought to their minds the days of their colthood, when they roamed about the meadows, before they were brought to the hot city with its hard, dusty pavements. The drivers liked the idea, too, and were only too glad to see their horses get a few mouthfuls of green feed. It was noticed that the old woman's best customers were beer wagon drivers. In a little while she had sold all her grass, and then she went up the steps of an "L" station on the uptown side. It was quite plain that she was bound for some fields in upper New York, where she could get another apronful of grass. The business is a new idea in this city, but it will be strange if the old woman has not several imitators before the summer is over. "Anything to make a nickel" is the battle cry of the poor soldiers of fortune in this great maelstrom of wasteful luxury and griping penury.

Getting Dock Pointers Abroad.

Although New York city has as good a dock system as perhaps can be found in any seaport in this country, the authorities here recognize that there is room for improvement; so Dock Commissioner McDougall Hawkes and Secretary Fairley are in Antwerp studying dock systems of that ancient port. They will go on to Rotterdam for the same purpose. Mr. Hawkes is quoted as saying that he considered Antwerp's maritime installations remarkable. He noted several special features which he believed could be used with benefit in New York.

Pittsburgh Phil Loses Sometimes.

"Pittsburgh Phil" was standing in Broadway, near Herald square, last evening. Somebody remarked that probably he had won a great deal of money this year. "Phil" looked at the speaker for a moment with serious gaze. Then he said, slowly: "If I had today as much money as I have lost this season, I would never bet on another horse race; and that is the unvarnished truth. Bookmakers know as much as I do." Then he stepped into a neighboring billiard room and watched, with apparently the deepest interest, a party of youths playing pingpong.

Free Mineral Water.

Competition among the moderate-price restaurants in New York is always powerful. A new idea at one of them is to give free mineral water with their meals. If one buys only a cup of coffee he can have a glass of carbonated water with it, if he chooses, of the kind that would cost 5 or 10 cents ordinarily. Whether it pays or not, is a matter between the restaurant owner and his ledger. Of course, many customers do not care for the mineral water; but the fact that it is to be had for the asking, or even without asking, is evidence that rivalry between restaurants is strong and far-reaching. Places where one pays 5 cents, and in return swallows as many glasses of mineral water as he likes without extra charge, have been flourishing in New York for several years, as they have been in many American cities.

Pittsburg Hotel Man's New Position.

William Wolff, who was for many years one of the best-known hotel managers in Pittsburgh, having been in charge of the Henry, Central and other houses there at different times, has been selected for an important position on the executive staff of the skyscraping hotel which will occupy the site of the old St. Cloud in this city at Forty-second street and Broadway. The new hotel, work on which has just begun, will be called the Knickerbocker. Mr. Wolff has been a New Yorker for the past three or four years.

Lillian Russell's New Automobile.

From Far Rockaway to upper Broadway comes the joyful news that Lillian Russell has two new automobiles to replace those burned the other day. The new machines look like those destroyed, but are said to be even faster, when everything is thrown wide open. One is red and the other blue, and as the fair Lillian is always attired in white on these bright summer days she and her autos suggest pulchritude and patriotism combined.

A Genius in the Label Line.

A dealer in second-hand articles over in Brooklyn, besides having a heterogeneous collection in his dingy show, takes erratic flights in his descriptions of his wares. He has coins, postage stamps, minerals, shells and a lot of things that would be indescribable by the average man. The dealer is always equal to the occasion, however. Here are some of his labels: "Bottled hematite," "pine ship pertified," "zince pyrvetis," "christal iron," "Turkish grannat stone," "congealed water" (a piece of granite), "supiuriated copper ore," "putty agat," "fell sparr mofedesart," "fossel," "pastas," "sulphuriced petrified wood." And all this is in matter-of-fact Brooklyn, remember.

From the Cleveland Leader.

President Roosevelt continues to draw about him men of ideas and personal distinction, through a wide range of interests, from natural history to literature, who were his natural associates before he became president. He has tastes which are both catholic and high, and he has also the courage of his inclinations when he puts aside politicians to make way for men prominent in fine fields of endeavor far from party management or public business.

KING'S SECRETARY THE LORD KNOLLYS

Strong Man in France Is the Late Governor General of Indo-China.

By the MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

King Edward's private secretary, Sir Francis Knollys, whose name is almost as well known in this country as it is on yonder side of the Atlantic, has announced his intention of retaining his patronymic on his elevation to the peerage; and will from henceforth be known as Lord Knollys of Caversham in the county of Oxford. When the name of Sir Francis appeared among the coronation honors the other day as having been created a peer by the king in recognition of his devoted services of over 30 years as private secretary, it was generally assumed he would take the title of Lord Banbury, which, though conceded to his father, the late Gen. Sir William Knollys, and to the other ancestors in the past 200 years by repeated decrees of the high court of justice, had been invariably denied by the committee of privileges of the house of lords, and in consequence thereof, by the crown, owing to some question as to the legitimacy of the sons of the earl of Banbury, who lived in the reign of King Charles II.

The action of Sir Francis in deciding to be known as "Lord Knollys," rather than as "Lord Banbury" gives rise to the belief that his family have some intention of bringing their claims to the earldom of Banbury once more before the committee of privileges of the house of lords, on this occasion probably with more success than previously.

So many communications of one kind and another are dispatched from this country to King Edward's private secretary in connection with matters which it is desired to submit to the British monarch, that it may be as well to give here the manner in which the letters should be addressed. The direction is as follows:

"The Right Honorable
The Lord Knollys, G. C. V. O., etc., etc.
Buckingham Palace, London."

Pardon for High Gamblers.

Emperor Francis Joseph has, by means of an imperial pardon, remitted the sentence of banishment pronounced by the Austrian courts of Vienna against Count Joseph Potocki, Nicolas de Szemere and Andor de Pechy, in connection with the high play at the Vienna Jockey club some months ago. It may be remembered that Count Potocki lost over $1,000,000 in a single night at the card table, the affair creating such an amount of talk that the authorities were compelled to take action. The participants in the game were condemned to fines and to banishment. The fines have been paid, but the other penalities, namely, those of exile, have been remitted by the emperor.

One Man of France.

I would advise my readers to keep their eye upon M. Doumer, who recently returned from the far orient, where he has been filling for several years past the role of governor general of France's vast colonial possessions in Indo-China, to resume political life as a member of the chamber of deputies. No one need be astonished to see him at any moment entrusted with the premiership, and few public men in France have a better prospect of succeeding Loubet as president of the republic.

Doumer commenced his astonishing career as a working locksmith, and is the son of working people of the humblest kind, who could only afford to give him the most elementary education. It was not exactly easy for him to fill up the vacant edicational gaps, but he did it by dint of pivation and hard work. Part of the money he earned as a workman went to pay for his education in the same way that all his lejsure time went for his future advancement. In due course he became a "bacheller;" that is to say, he obtained by passing the necessary examination that scholastic degree from the state which is indispensable for French professional life, and the possession of which until now has constituted the sole plea on which the government permits young French citizens to serve one year in the army instead of three. After having thus graduated M. Doumer abandoned manual labor and the profession of a locksmith, and embarked in journalism, first as reporter, then as a special writer, becoming ultimately the editor of the Voltaire, in those days a very influential organ. As usual, journalism led to politics. He became the principal private secretary to M. Floquet when the latter was prime minister, entered the chamber as a Boulanger deputy, and after successive rises, became minister of finance in the administration of M. Bourgeois, who is at present the president of the chamber of deputies.

Handicapped by Poverty.

At that period of his existence his family was somewhat of a drag upon him. For he has six children, and in those days at any rate had no private means. His wife, the daughter of a very learned professor and a charming and cultured woman, had brought him no fortune. When he accepted the governor-generalship of Indo-China, which was offered to him by jealous political rivals in order to get him out of the way, he had about 60,000 francs' worth of debts. As governor-general at Saigon, where he remained for five years, he had a salary of $30,000 a year and $20,000 a year more in the shape of official allowances. While he maintained the dignity of his office with requisite splendor, surrounded by a large staff of military and civilian aides, he is understood to have saved enough money during his term in the far orient to ensure himself a modest competency, after paying off the debts which he had left in France, and this, joined with his salary as a member of the chamber of deputies, enables him to live without resorting to any other means of earning an income for himself and his family until he becomes once more minister, premier, presiding officer of the chamber or of the senate, or chief magistrate of the republic.

He is a man of simple tastes, a water drinker, a model husband, a devoted father, clean-handed, and who during his sojourn in the far east has proved himself to be a wonderfully clever administrator, besides acquiring the good will of the clergy and religious orders while governor-general through the care of their interests, without, however, forfeiting the support and confidence of the anti-clerical element in French political life.

The immense French colony or series of colonies known as Indo-China have shown a more rapid development during his five years' term of office than during those of all his predecessors put together, and he enjoys the distinction of having been the first administrator who has known how to make Indo-China pay its way instead of being a source of enormous expense to the home government.

Never Signs His Name.

Young King Alfonso is the only monarch in Europe who never signs his name save in the private letters which he addresses to his nearest and dearest relatives. All communications addressed to subjects, as well as every official document requiring the sign manual of the sovereign, are signed with the words, "Yoel Rey" (I, the King). Emperor William, the czar, Emperor Francis Joseph or King Edward, when writing to a subject will generally add some such phrase to his signature as "your well disposed," or "your affectionate" sovereign. But it is contrary to etiquette for the Spanish king to close any letter to a subject with any such friendly compliment.

No one who has not lived at Madrid has any idea of the etiquette which prevails at the Spanish court. Thus for centuries the birth of a prince has always been officially announced in one set term, namely, that "a strong and healthy infant has been born," and this phrase was actually used during the reign of Queen Isabella in conjunction with the intimation that the child had only lived a couple of hours.

FIGHT ON MOTHS BROUGHT RESULTS

But It Isn't a Sure Thing That the Pests Were Routed.

"THE moths nearly drive me wild," said one Shadyside lady to another.

"I really don't know what to do to get rid of the pests. If I put away anything for the summer, even with camphor balls, I am always certain to find the article eaten full of holes if I happen to want it again. It is really too much trouble to look over everything in the attics once a week, shake them out and examine them for moths, but that is what I am obliged to do in order to avoid their ravages."

"Well," replied her friend, "whatever you do, don't do as was done by the maid of a friend of mine."

"What did she do?"

"She decided that a certain room upstairs infested by moths had to be thoroughly disinfected, so to speak. She knew that the insects abominate gasoline and therefore resolved to sprinkle that odorous fluid all over everything, in the hope that the moths would give up the struggle and lie down and die. After she had the gasoline well distributed the smell hung around so long as to make the

YOUNG PASTOR ANGERS SESSION BY HIS ACTIONS

Affairs in McKeesport Presbyterian Church Assume Serious Aspect.

CONGREGATION PUZZLED

The Rev. C. F. Huss, on Three Months' Vacation on Pacific Coast, Writes Friend That He Will Stay Until September.

Because their young pastor, the Rev. C. F. Huss, has apparently deserted his charge, affairs are assuming a serious aspect in the East McKeesport Presbyterian church. It will be remembered that Mr. Huss was given a three months' vacation last April by the congregation; his salary, of course, advanced. In addition to this the congregation gave him a well-filled purse and congratulated itself that not every growing congregation did as well by its pastor.

The congregation was a bit chagrined when Mr. Huss wrote to some personal friends, last week, that he did not propose to return until September, as his health was not as it should be. The session of the church says that Mr. Huss did not notify it officially. More than this the young pastor put a postscript to his letter, stating that if the congregation did not like his arrangements it could accept the letter as his resignation.

The utter want of formality, and even, it was hinted, respect for his flock, as intimated in the letter, stunned the session and the older members of the church. Then, again, word came that the young pastor was diverting himself by preaching in various parts of the Pacific coast. This angered the session and trustees.

Accordingly after prayer, last night, there was a quiet meeting called with a view to considering Mr. Huss' informal resignation. The meeting had scarcely opened when it was evident there would be a merry war. The young pastor had some personal friends, who, the session says, tried to excuse his inexplicable want of courtesy.

An attempt was made to put through a motion accepting his resignation, but it failed by a narrow margin. Then it was decided to give the young pastor a chance to explain his action. The session will write at once and demand an explanation. Meanwhile, there is every promise of a split in the church. From all that can be learned the young pastor will hardly get that full support which had been accorded him, should he decide to return.

The wiser element say that he has become interested in another field, and lacked the courage to tell his flock so plainly. On the other hand, his friends say that the session is not supporting him properly.

THE REV. C. F. HUSS,
Whose Actions May Cause Split in His Congregation.

THE SHAFT ENTRANCE TO THE WABASH TUNNEL

In the center of what was a year ago a quiet farm, undisturbed by modern engineering machinery, this shaft has been sunk. Through it is lifted the excavated material, including tons of coal, from the headings of the big Wabash tunnel, beneath Greentree borough. The shaft is placed in one of the lowest points on the line of the tunnel, but the tons of material that have come up from the big hole have been used to fill up a large portion of this valley. What was before a gully is now being made level enough to be of value for farming purposes. The rapidity with which this is worked can be judged by the fact that there are no transfers of the dirt from the time it is placed in the cars in the tunnel until it is run to its place on the dump. Cars and all are brought to the surface. The little railroad in the tunnel is of the same gauge as the one that leads to the dump.

THIESS ARRESTED AT KEWANEE, ILL.

KEWANEE, ILL., July 20.—Acting upon information from the chief of police of Carnegie, Pa., City Marshal Otis today arrested Frederick Thiess for the murder of Tuferi Banatia. The prisoner was working in the mills of the Western Tube Company under the assumed name of Miller.

The crime with which he is charged took place at Heidelberg, a suburb of Carnegie, Sunday, June 22. The victim was stabbed in the breast during a fight at a picnic and soon died. Thiess fled and went to Spring Valley, Ill., and after working a week there came to Kewanee.

He says he wrote one letter to his wife in Carnegie, from which he has had no reply, so it is believed the authorities there learned his address from his mail.

Thiess, at first denied all knowledge of the killing of Banatia, but later confessed to Marshal Otis he had seen the Italian draw a knife to assault a companion and had then struck him in the forehead. The knife held by Banatia had been driven into his own breast.

Forty of the first-class passengers who have abandoned their trip will land tomorrow morning and proceed to their homes.

EDWARD SNEATHEN KILLED.

Revolver Goes Off and Bullet Penetrates the Stomach.

Edward, the 15-year-old son of J. C. Sneathen of 363 Stratford avenue, died at 1:30 this morning in the Homeopathic hospital from a bullet wound in the abdomen, which he received yesterday afternoon. The shooting was accidental.

Edward, with a companion, was shooting at a mark with a 32-caliber revolver, when the weapon failed to explode. An examination by the boys resulted in the revolver going off and the bullet penetrating Sneathen's stomach.

HEADQUARTERS FOR MINE FUND IN BIG CITIES

Offices Will Be Opened and Money Solicited to Aid the Strike.

PLAN NOT ALL ARRANGED

All the Delegates Have Left Indianapolis, but Those Who Are to Lead in the Work—Socialists Expected to Help.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Indianapolis, Ind., July 20.—The last of the miners who were here to make provision for carrying on the strike in the anthracite field left today for their homes. Only President Mitchell and one or two members of the national executive board remain, and their stay will be short. President Mitchell expects to leave for Wilkesbarre tomorrow or Tuesday.

The care of the national organization now will be to see to the collection of the defense fund. Secretary Wilson, who is the financial head of the union, will be in charge of this work and will lose no time in preparing to handle the sums. It is believed that all the voluntary contributions from the various districts and sub-districts and local organizations will be turned into his hands within the next ten days. These contributions are estimated at about $400,000.

Will Be Methodical.

A systematic method will be adopted for canvassing for outside subscriptions in the large cities. The miners hope to raise $250,000 a week for the public contributions, as that much will be needed to bring the sum up to $500,000.

Their exact plan of raising the subscriptions has not been determined on, as President Mitchell declared today, the convention is of too recent date to have allowed much time for arranging such details. It is probable, however, that the Central Labor Union in all cities where such organizations exist will be asked to take charge of the raising of subscriptions, which will be forwarded at once to Secretary Wilson.

In some of the largest cities of the country, such as Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, headquarters will probably be established from which the work will be conducted and committees will be appointed to make the canvass.

Aid from Socialists.

Some aid is expected to come from the national socialists organization. Leon Greenbaum, secretary of the national committee, who was here to attend the convention, turned over to President Mitchell the membership lists of that party and $15 in money, which had been sent in to the headquarters at St. Louis.

The distribution of the funds will be left almost entirely to the officers of the anthracite districts. Money will be sent to them to be used in relieving the dependents. It is probable the same general plan will be adopted as has been pursued in the Virginia district, of buying provisions and turning them over to the men instead of distributing the money direct.

President Mitchell has made the following estimate of number of strikers and dependents in each district and weekly revenues to be derived from each district under the decision of the convention, together with amounts of weekly assessments by districts:

Statistics of the Fund.

District No. 1, Pennsylvania (anthracite)—Miners on strike, 79,500; number of dependents, 397,000.

District No. 7, Pennsylvania (anthracite)—Miners on strike, 18,000; number of dependents, 90,000.

District No. 9, Pennsylvania (anthracite)—Miners on strike, 52,500; number of dependents, 262,500.

Total strikers in anthracite field, 150,000; total number of dependents in anthracite field, 750,000; estimated weekly expense in anthracite field, $500,000.

District No. 17, West Virginia (bituminous)—Number of strikers, 25,000; number of dependents, 75,000.

Revenue for defraying strike expenses: Estimated contributions from districts, $100,000; estimated contributions from sub-districts, $100,000; estimated contributions from locals, $200,000. Total, $400,000.

Estimated revenue from weekly assessments by districts: No. 2 Pennsylvania, $30,000; No. 5 Pennsylvania, $30,000; No. 6 Ohio, $40,000; No. 8 Indiana, block, $4,000; No. 12 Illinois, $50,000; No. 11 Indiana, bituminous, $10,000; No. 13 Iowa, $15,000; No. 14 Kansas, $10,000; No. 15 Colorado, $7,000; No. 16 Maryland, $5,000; No. 19 Tennessee, $8,000; No. 20 Alabama, $10,000; No. 1 Arkansas and Indian Territory, $7,000; No. 23 Kentucky, $10,000; No. 24, Missouri, $8,000. Total, $224,000.

Estimated public contributions weekly, $250,000. Grand total weekly income, $491,000.

ITALY WANTS NO HELP.

Foreign Money May Build a Temple Instead of Campanile.

LONDON, July 20.—The Venice correspondent of the Daily Mail says the Italian minister of fine arts considers it desirable that the Campanile should be rebuilt solely by the aid of Italian subscriptions; and it has been suggested, in view of the world-wide manifestations of sympathy, to use the foreign donations to build a temple in honor of human fraternity.

One of President's Plans.

CONCORD, N. H., July 20.—Gov. Jordan has been notified by Secretary Cortelyou that President Roosevelt will come to New Hampshire on August 28. The governor will detail members of his staff, with Secretary of State Pearson, to meet the president in Boston and escort him to Concord, whence he will proceed to The Weirs, to become the guest of the New Hampshire Veterans' association at their annual encampment.

Preached Sedition in India.

BOMBAY, July 20.—A man has been arrested at Lucknow for preaching sedition in the lines of the Seventh Rajput regiment. The prisoner is believed to be Ranabeni Madhu of Shankarpur, famous as a mutiny leader, who was known to have been hiding in Nepaul a few months ago.

Veteran Minstrel Dead.

BOSTON, July 20.—James J. Kelly, an old time minstrel who, during his professional career, appeared in nearly every part of the country, died at his home in this city today. He was 60 years old.

Three Army Stories.

Daniel O'Connell once told the house of commons an amusing story of bribery. A farmer in the county of Wexford was promised a position for his son in return for his vote for a member of the Loftus family, says the Chicago News. The father's ambition for the boy aimed at a sergeantcy in the artillery, but Lord Loftus, on applying for this post for the youth, was informed that it was totally impossible to grant the request, inasmuch as it required a previous service of six years to qualify a candidate for the position. "Does it require six years to qualify him for a lieutenantcy?" demanded Lord Loftus. "Certainly not," was the answer. "Well, can't you make him a lieutenant, then?" rejoined Lord Loftus. "Whereupon," said O'Connell, "the fellow was made a lieutenant for no better reason than just because he was not fit to be a sergeant."

Some years ago a battery of British artillery was at big gun practice at Bermuda. One of the guns was found to have a serious flaw. The officer in charge, not caring to risk half a dozen valuable lives, inquired:

"Sergeant, have we any time-expired men here?"

"Yes, sir," answered the sergeant. "Paddy Jackson has just completed his time."

"Well, then," replied the thoughtful officer, "Paddy Jackson will fire the gun."

The duke of Wellington once met, by accident, an officer in a state of inebriety.

"Look here, sir," said the Iron Duke, "what would you do if you met one of your men in the condition in which I find you?"

The officer drew himself up, gave the military salute, and replied with great gravity, "I would not condescend to speak to the brute." His wit saved him his commission.

THIEVES AND THUGS AT WORK THROUGH CITY

W. J. Fulton May Die from Injuries Received at Their Hands.

OTHER ATTACKS REPORTED

Foreigner Was Held Up at His Home and Four Other Cases Were Reported in One Night—One Policeman Refused to Give Aid.

Pittsburgh's citizens are again being waylaid by thugs and thieves. W. J. Fulton of No. 3914 Liberty avenue, watchman for the bottling department of the Iron City Brewing Company at Liberty and Thirty-third streets, was assaulted by three thugs shortly after midnight on Saturday and seriously injured. He was removed to his home and his physicians say that he is in a precarious condition. His right wrist was broken and he was kicked about the head and stomach so that he is injured internally and his life is despaired of.

Fulton was making his rounds Saturday night. Within a hundred feet of Sassafras street he was accosted by three men and they asked him if he had any beer in the bottling department. He replied that he had, but they could not have it. They immediately jumped on him. After they kicked and pounded him his cries were heard by a number of the brewery employes. They ran to his assistance, but the thugs made their escape.

Fulton was picked up and taken to a physician's office, where his wounds were dressed. He was then taken to his home. Several other assaults and robberies were reported during the night. About an hour after Fulton was assaulted a foreigner reported at No. 25 engine company that he had been held up by three men near his home at Charlotte and Thirty-third streets, just as he was about to enter the door. One of them grabbed his umbrella and another struck him in the eye with a butt of a revolver.

They went through his pockets and took $17 in cash, but overlooked his watch. A search was made for the men, but no trace of them could be found. The police say that the case was not reported to them, but the foreigner says that he asked the assistance of a policeman, who refused to go with him, as he was off duty and was on his way home. Four other assaults were reported during the night at different police stations.

A Profitable Morning.

From Harper's Magazine.

Mrs. Melville, shopping, placed her umbrella against the counter, and turning to go, took up by mistake not her own, but another umbrella that rested near it.

"I beg your pardon," broke in an icy voice with more than a hint of suspicion in it—"you are taking my umbrella."

Mrs. Melville apologized, picked up the one which belonged to her, and made her way to the repair department, where, the week before, she had left an umbrella of her husband's and an old one of her own to be repaired.

Carrying these in her hand, she took a homeward-bound car. She noticed in a few minutes that a woman opposite was staring at her in a quizzical way, and glancing up, saw that it was the same one she had apologized to. The woman caught her eye, carried it significantly to the three umbrellas Mrs. Melville was taking home, and said, "I see you have had a profitable morning, madam."

STRANGE CAREER OF A STRANGE MAN

ODD CHARACTER IN KENTUCKY WHO HAS LONG DEFIED LAW.

William Wallen Makes Moonshine Whiskey and Admits It, but Has Always Managed to Elude the Officers. Kills in Self Defense.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CRAFTSVILLE, KY., July 20.—That a man could for thirty years defy the United States authorities and carry on the business of moonshining seems impossible to any one who has not penetrated the fastnesses of the Cumberland Mountains, where civilization is a mockery and where law and order are jokes. Will Wallen, aged 50 years, and known as "Whisky Bill," is the man who has done this thing. Today he is still living in his accustomed haunts, and is as free as the deer in his native mountains.

For over thirty years "Whisky Bill" has eluded the officers of the government. Both the Kentucky and the Virginia officials have searched for him numerous times, but they have so far failed to effect his capture. At this time there is little or no effort made to capture Wallen, and his celebrated whisky resort in the wilds of the Cumberlands has become the only rendezvous for moonshine lovers for many miles around.

Thousands of his followers go there annually, and as a result many deeds of violence are committed in the nearby settlements by the drunken desperadoes.

A reporter for The Gazette visited the camp this week and asked for the story of his life.

Wallen at first slightly objected, but at length he gave consent with a slight bow, adding: "Well, it is not a serious matter no way, for they can't get me," meaning the officers of the law.

Wallen began: "My history as a moonshiner dates back some forty odd years, when I was but a mere boy on a farm in the upper hills of Scott county, Va., where I spent my first 15 years. There I would often sit in idle wonder and prank with a miniature tin vessel which I called 'my moonshine still.'

How He Started.

"I learned at the start that with a little practice I could become an expert at liquor making. I was delighted with boyish glee when I saw I had turned off some nice apple brandy in my little still at the third attempt, and I had my father sample it. He said it was fine.

"Before I was 20 I had made many successful attempts. At this time my father and I disagreed and I concluded to 'pitch my tent' in other quarters. I came directly to the Cumberland mountains—Kentucky-Virginia border—where I am still located.

"The first thing I did was to buy a fine lot of copper and tin metal necessary to make a complete moonshine outfit at as little expense as possible. I went to work constructing a still—about 100 gallons capacity—and at the end of the first month I had her completed and a nice 'run' of pure old corn 'licker' for sale at the pitiful price of 10 cents per pint.

"The first 'run' netted me $10 clear of all expenses. I saw it was a sure go, and began making preparations to strike it on a heavier scale. At the end of the first year I had a saving of over $400—which paid me quite handsomely.

"Time went on for five years. The fame of my productions spread for many miles, and people came to see me by the dozens with jugs, etc., to carry away the only pure and unadulterated moonshine whisky that could be obtained in the vast mountain district adjacent.

"Soon officers were on the lookout for me, and during the preceding years I had several fierce encounters with the Kentucky and Virginia 'revenuers.'

"On one occasion, in June, 1880, I shot a deputy United States officer three times in a desperate conflict between 13 officers and my comrade, George Jones, and myself. We put the officers to flight at a rapid rate, besides wounding one of them. I do not remember the officers' names, but Marshal Adington was at the head of the list.

Had Many Fights.

"Since, and during all this flight of time, I have been regularly engaged in 'stilling.' Every year, no matter how plentiful the production of the surrounding territory, I manage to sell from $300 to $400 worth, because my manufacture excels by far anything known in the moonshine business.

"Whisky, like everything else, goes by the grade of the article, and my manufacture is so far ahead of my competitors that people will pay me a far better price for my article."

"Were you ever mixed in any mountain feuds?" asked the correspondent.

"I was never directly mixed," said Wallen, "but I was somewhat connected with Jim Wright in his famous war against Clabe Jones and his Knott county faction, and was in one engagement at the mouth of Boone's Fork (Boone Hill).

"In that battle we were 18 strong, while Jones and his men numbered an even 20. I am sure we would have whipped them and killed a round dozen had it not been for a dense fog forming between the lines. John Wright had always been my right-hand friend, though I would have had no connection with the feud war between him and Jones if he (Jones) had not come with the revenue men to destroy my moonshining outfit.

"How many men have you killed?"

"I have never divulged that to any one," said Wallen, "and I would not tell it to my most intimate friend. I have killed several during my career, but in most cases I was compelled to do so.

"Years ago I killed one Bishop Boggs, a young man, on Cumberland river. His death was wrapped in mystery for many years, and it has never been clearly known that I committed the deed. I did it because I was compelled to do so. Boggs came upon me with a gun, demanding my money.

"After the murder, Boggs' brothers hunted for me, thinking I was guilty because, I suppose, he had threatened to rob me on divers occasions.

"In Knott county I have never denied the murder of Taylor Vance, a Clabe Jones sympathizer, in July, 1884. I killed him because he had made numerous threats upon my life. On this trip I carried 50 gallons of moonshine whisky across the rough mountains on a peddling tour."

Wallen is worth several thousand dollars, and he gained all his dollars by dodging Uncle Sam.

"Tired to death" is the feeling which frequently precedes a collapse. Don't neglect the warning. Dr. D. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge will remove the obstructions and pave the way to health.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Ill., July 20.—For half a minute this afternoon more baseball players than ever took part in any contest before were engaged in the game. Every member of the Pittsburgh team, substitutes, regulars and all took a hand, while Selee's cripples hopped from the bench where they were sitting and danced around the diamond like mad men.

There was never such a mix-up on any baseball diamond before, and even those who participated know only what they did themselves. They have no idea what anybody else was doing and the umpire cannot tell because he put his hands over his eyes to shut out the horrible sight.

In this half-minute of pandemonium Chicago was prevented from winning from the Pirates because of the poor base running judgment of her players and a great game went to Pittsburgh.

Lasted Twelve Innings.

It was a game which lasted 12 innings. The Pirates took a long lead at the very first. The score was 6 to 2 in their favor, when the ninth inning was called. The Orphans, jumping into the batting wagon, slammed home four runs in what was to have been the final act.

These tied the score. In the eleventh, with a man on third and another on second and only one out, Chicago did not score because everybody became a candidate for the mad house. Then in the twelfth Hans Wagner won the game for the champions by a home run, which he drove to the club house over Slagle's head. One man was on the circuit then, so the score was 8 to 6 in favor of Pittsburgh.

Another game was to have been played, but when the second one started the rain which had been falling in a drizzle all of the afternoon came down in a sheet and the umpire called this one off.

Williams Hit Hard.

Pittsburgh, by talking hard on Williams, made three in the first inning. Then they picked up three more, one each in the fourth, fifth and seventh. So sure were they of victory that in the eighth inning Wagner pursuously ran into a double play.

Chicago managed to get over a couple in the third and fifth innings. In all the others they simply pulled the ball over to the bench. There was a monstrous error by Arthur Williams, who failed to center. Lowe got a double in left. Menefee hit safe. Then Kling was given a life. Tannehill being very wild, Jacobs, who followed Kling, hit Williams and Lowe home and Menefee to center. Schaefer put one man on second base and Jacobs and Kling were on the sacks. Tannehill then settled down and Kling was forced in.

Williams flied to Beaumont and Burke and Tannehill struck out, leaving the bases loaded. Two men on, two out and Tannehill batting, with a chance of victory in this inning, but Slagle flied to Clarke.

Leach's Error Costly.

In the eleventh Kling reached first on Leach's error and Jacobs bunted safely. Then Schaefer sacrificed, and the Orphans looked to be a 1-to-3 shot. Miller was the next up and he batted the ball lightly to Leach. Kling very foolishly started for home. Seeing that he would be cut off at the plate, he started back again. The Pirate fielders began to run in. Kling was finally safe and then attention was called to Jacobs who was half way between second and third. Every Pirate player on the bench got into the fray. Ritchey was not in the game at all, but he managed to get a couple of assists, and so did O'Connor. Even the colored boy who carries the bat bag was ducking for the ball. The Orphans, from Manager Selee down, were shouting instructions to the team, but something started Kling again. It was probably a throw to first. Any way he got off his base once more and the performance began again.

Pirates Chose Kling.

There were 15 Pirates by actual count after Kling. Zimmer made a quick run while the others surrounded him and caught Kling at the plate. Jacobs was also run down between second and third, completing a double play.

In the twelfth Wagner, for Pittsburgh, won it. Beaumont first beat out a drive toward Williams, and after Leach had flied to Kling Hans shot a homer over Slagle's head. It was never very high in the air but kept going, and finally brought up near the club house door. The score:

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Fred Clarke got into bad repute with the crowd for throwing a ball over the grandstand after it had become wet and somewhat dead. It was found and brought back and then everybody cried for the fielder's head.

While Pittsburgh was batting in the eighth Zimmer fell asleep on the bench and had to be awakened before he understood that he was supposed to catch the remainder of the game.

The teams were fortunate to be able to play even one game. Rain fell all of the afternoon coming down quite heavy at times.

STEVENSON KNOCKED OUT.

Sharon Pounded New Castle Twirler So Hard He Was Replaced by Crum.

SHARON, PA., July 20.—(Special.)—Sharon won today's game from New Castle in a walk. McNeil had the visitors at his mercy, striking out 16 and allowing only three hits.

Stevenson was knocked out of the box in the fourth when Sharon scored nine runs. Crum, who replaced him, pitched good ball. The fielding was ragged but at times some sensational plays were made. McNeil has a strike-out record of 32 men in two games. The score:

CUBANS WANT TO PLAY CHAMPIONS

THEY WILL TRY TO ARRANGE FOR GAME IN AUGUST.

Team Is Champion of Cuba National League and Is Said to Have Some Good Players on It—Want Tannehill to Pitch.

The All-Cuban baseball team, which is playing games in different towns and cities in Western Pennsylvania, is anxious to secure a game with the Pittsburgh team. The All-Cubans are the champions of the National League of Cuba for this year and are anxious to test their strength with the coming champions of the year of the United States National league.

The All-Cuban team arrived in Pittsburgh last night and will play a series of three games at Homestead today, Tuesday and Wednesday. During the series it is the intention of Manager Abel Linares to try and arrange with President Barney Dreyfuss and Secretary Harry Pulliam of the local team for a contest some date in August.

If it is impossible to have a game scheduled with the Pirates, then Manager Linares will after all to make arrangements for a contest with one of the other teams in the National league. After several games in this section the All-Cuban team goes back into eastern Pennsylvania for a number of games, and the team will leave for Cuba about the middle of September.

The Pittsburgh team will be away from home for almost a month, and it will be impossible to arrange a game between the National league champions of Cuba and the United States until the Pirates return to Pittsburgh in August. Then one or two open dates occur, and it may be possible that President Dreyfuss will decide to schedule a game.

Manager Linares called at The Gazette last night and made the following statement: "Ever since our team arrived in the United States it has been the desire of all the members to play the Pittsburghs. We lead all the other five teams in the Cuba National league race, which closed May 25.

"We are willing to play the Pittsburgh team any time and place in order to suit their arrangements. Our intention in trying to secure a match is to find out the merits of the two teams and how we would stand with the champions of this country.

"Several members of our team have played against a Pittsburgh player. He is Jesse Tannehill, who pitched against us in Havana in 1900, when he was with the Brooklyn team. The score in that game was 9 to 4 in favor of Brooklyn. If we get a game with Pittsburgh we would like to have Tannehill pitch against us."

A game between the champions and All-Cubans at Exposition park would prove a good drawing card. The team has been in Pennsylvania for several weeks and has met many of the best amateur nines in the city. It has won a majority of its games and on the team are said to be some expert ball players.

CHAMPIONS GOT REVENGE.

Chesbro Pitched Them to a Splendid Victory in Saturday's Game.

The champions took sweet revenge from the Chicago team at Exposition park Saturday afternoon for the stinging defeat administered by Seele's men on Friday by shutting them out by a score of 5 to 0.

Happy Jack Chesbro was on the rubber for the Pirates and pitched a fine game. His support was good, only one error being charged against the locals. Chesbro has pitched 50 innings, with the allowance of one run for his services. Score:

LION'S SHARE OF GOLF PRIZES FOR IRON CITY

Though Chicago Wins the Championship, Pittsburgh Has the Glory.

BYERS' PLAY UNEQUALED

Louis N. James Owes His Title to E. M. Byers, Who Disposed of Travis and Fredericks for Him—Oil City Man's Laurels.

By J. N. PATTERSON,
Staff Correspondent.

Glenview Golf Course, Ill., July 20.—Chicago bagged the golf championship, but to Pittsburgh goes the glory of the tournament. Louis N. James is the first golfer in the land, but E. M. Byers, who played the most remarkable golf this country has ever known, is the most famous. Neither accidents of war nor defeat under most unfortunate conditions can dim the splendor of the most perfect golf on record, which shattered the idol of American golfers.

The man who retired Travis left the Glenview clubhouse tonight the most popular rival that ever shared with a home champion the fruits of victory.

Pittsburgh sprang the first sensation of the tournament when G. A. Ormiston tied with the ex-champion in the very first round of play for the honor by a medal score of 79, which was never touched during the whole tournament except in that most remarkable of all battles when Travis went one better and Byers beat it by two.

The tying of Travis and the defeat of Travis do not sum up Western Pennsylvania's record. The sensation of the tournament, viewed from the spectators' standpoint, was the plucky Oil City player, Dr. D. P. Fredericks, who retired the well-known Lockwood, one of the east's ambitious contestants for the championship, and then disposed of such men as Poole and Leslie, finishing with a hard chase after Byers in the semi-finals. Byers was known as a good golfer, while Fredericks was the unknown, dark horse of the tournament.

Prizes for the Pittsburghers.

Pittsburgh carried away more prizes than any other city in the country. Byers carried away a silver medal as runner-up in the final; Ormiston, a silver cup for second qualifying score, and Dr. Fredericks, the fourth medal, offered for the runner-up in the semi-finals.

A spectacular rise to the first place among golfers of the country was that of Louis N. James, the 19-year-old Chicagoan. From the very bottom to the top he rose; from among the 13 who were tied for the last of the 64 qualifying positions to the championship. Constant practice and a true Scottish form acquired from Louis Auchterioule, the open champion of the west, brought him the gold medal in the first championship tournament he ever competed in. A watersoaked course, which he could not play as well as the home man, the loss of the advantage of the second nine holes, owing to the flood, and some very hard luck, had as much to do with Byers' defeat as James' golf, however, and James' most enthusiastic supporters do not dream that he could have won against the golf which defeated Travis, any more than that the present champion could have overcome the famous Walter J. on the day that he played in '78. One under his best record for the course, and yet succumbed to Byers. Chicagoans realize this and are thankful to Byers for helping their boy wonder to the championship.

Tributes from Rivals.

E. M. Byers, who left for his home tonight, is perhaps the most talked-of golfer in the country tonight. Here are a few of the tributes to him:

Champion Louis F. James—He is one of the greatest golfers I have ever seen. I regarded Byers and Travis as the two hardest men the tournament could hold for me. Yes, I think his putting lost him the match more than anything else in his game. His nerve and grim determination were wonderful. No, I never felt sure of the championship until after the 31 hole was passed.

Walter J. Travis, ex-champion—Byers plays a strong game and remarkably easy style. He is an exceedingly skillful player and has lots of nerve. I don't mind losing to golf like his. There was not one stroke that could have been improved on in the second round of his match with me, except the tpped brassie going for the tenth. There was nothing but good golf all the way and the young man deserves his victory.

Editor Pottow of Golf—Byers' style is the most wonderfully easy I have ever seen. The distance he goes over without any apparent effort is surprising. His long game is about perfect, and his brassie play marvelously exact. I should say, with his chances for development, that he may furnish greater surprises even than he has done.

GLASSON AND SCHLEE WON PURSUIT RACE

Amateur Champion Hurley Failed for First Time at Vailsburg to Win a Prize.

NEWARK, N. J., July 20.—At the Vailsburg track today the pursuit team race for amateurs was won rather easily by Glasson and Schlee. George Schreiber, the ex-amateur, captured the handicap for professionals in a clever fashion. The attendance was 8,000. Summaries:

A RECORD BROKEN.

Pittsburgh Bank Exchanges for the Week Over $4,409,000 Ahead of Last Year.

Pittsburgh bank exchanges for the week ending yesterday were the heaviest ever recorded for any similar week, beating the same period last year (which held the record) by nearly $4,410,000. Compared with the preceding week there was an increase of about $2,200,000. The gain during the week is attributable to final large payments made because of subscriptions to new stock issues. The total for the year to date is startling, but still shows a loss of about $21,513,000. The local money market is quite "spotty," being easier in some quarters and decidedly close in others. The rate for call and time loans continues unchanged at 5 @6 per cent.

The detailed clearing house reports are as follows:

	Exchanges.	Balances.
Yesterday	$6,691,287 44	$1,125,626 67

STRONG PROTEST AGAINST SUNDAY PARK SERVICES

The Rev. Dr. R. C. Wylie Says They Make a Variety Stage of the Pulpit.

PARKS ARE FOR PLEASURE

Wilkinsburg Pastor Says the Sunday Services There Serve as a Salve for the Consciences of Sabbath-Breakers—Should Be Separate.

The Rev. Dr. R. C. Wylie of the Wilkinsburg Reformed church does not believe that the church has a mission to the parks, and thinks the park service is a mere catering to the variety taste of this modern day. From the pulpit of the church of which he is pastor Dr. Wylie hurled protest after protest yesterday morning against the park sermon, the lowering of the pulpit to the standard of the variety stage and the crowning sin of using the Lord's day for worldly attractions.

"I protest," he cried out, "against the lowering of the pulpit to the level of pleasure-giving agencies; against the neglecting of the pulpit for the parks; against the setting up of counter worldly attractions on the Lord's day; against taking the pulpit to the parks; for my friends, people who have gone to the parks solely bent on pleasure, are in no wise prepared to receive religious impression."

Caused Much Talk.

This stirring protest caused a mild sensation in the congregation, and was the subject of much gossip about Wilkinsburg yesterday.

In his introductory remarks, Dr. Wylie said: "The pulpit represents the gospel of God; the parks the pleasures of the world. What should be their relation to each other? It is clear that the pulpit will not interfere with the parks, if the parks do not obstruct the works of the pulpit. The parks have their place, and their mission. So long as they abide in their sphere and their calling the benediction of the pulpit will rest upon them.

"But they are not content to do this. What, then, should be done? A few incontrovertible principles may first be considered.

Should Not Be Joined.

"The pulpit fills a place all its own. There no substitutes and no rivals are to be tolerated. The pulpit tells men they are sinners, and need to be reconciled to God. No other institution dare do this. The pulpit has a peculiar claim on the first day of the week. It should not be asked to relinquish that claim even in part. The park should not be made a hindrance.

"Withal there are a few facts to be noted here. The pulpit is under a natural disadvantage. Men need no change of heart to enjoy pleasures. They do to enjoy religion. People do not relish the pulpit, as they do the parks. Unrestrained indulgence in worldly pleasure renders the heart impervious to the gospel. Men should be serious sometimes. Worldly pleasure on the Lord's day is ill-timed and injurious to the spiritual interests.

A Strong Protest.

"The Sunday cannot be divided properly between the pulpit and the parks. The pulpit and the parks cannot be successfully joined on Sunday. The pulpit is a necessity, while they are a luxury.

At this point Dr. Wylie hurled the protest above. Continuing, he said:

"If men would remember that they have souls to be saved or lost, and would yield themselves to the spirit of God, there might be such a thing as a real interest in religion itself, without the aid of worldly devices. There are places where a pulpit cannot be erected with good. The park is one of them. When its erection is a compromise with the world, when it is popularly regarded as favoring any popular evil, when it cannot speak the whole truth, the whole gospel, when it serves as a salve for the consciences of Sunday breakers, the pulpit is thus improperly constructed; and of such is the park pulpit. Even good men, with a laudable desire to serve mankind, sometimes err in judgment."

MAY CALL A PASTOR.

Sentiment in Oakland Presbyterian Church Favors Congregational Meet.

The Oakland Presbyterian church may call a pastor this week. It was not quite decided, last night, just what to do but the sentiment was in favor of calling a congregational meeting with a view of calling either the Rev. J. S. Blayney of Glenfield, or the Rev. J. A. McDonald, from the eastern part of the state.

Both ministers have preached trial sermons since the pulpit was vacated by the Rev. Dr. H. T. Kerr. Mr. McDonald conducted both services yesterday and the congregation was, apparently, pleased with him.

This week and no longer, limited supplies Indian river Florida, pineapples, 10¢ at their best and cheapest. Continuously during the season full supplies of celebrated Indiana basket cantaloupes, orders promptly filled. Somers Brothers Co., 441-446 Seventh avenue. Both phones.

THE CHRISTIAN'S DUTY TO WORLD

DR. WILLIAM J. RUSSELL DELIVERS SERMON ON BEAUTY OF WORK.

Urges All Christians to Testify for Christ and Let Their Light So Shine That Men May See Their Good Works.

In the East End Christian church last night the Rev. Dr. William J. Russell, pastor, delivered an interesting sermon on "What Is a Christian?" in the course of which he defined the Christian's duties to his God and his fellowmen. "There is a readiness to witness for Christ," he said. "We can all engage in this blessed employment. Jesus has exhorted us so to let our light shine before men that they may see and glorify our Father which is in heaven.

"There is the work of saving others. With holy love burning in the heart we ought to go among the people as shining lights and make them feel the warmth of the divine love that animated the breast of Him who came, to seek and to save that which was lost. This, indeed, will afford a happy and healthful moral and spiritual employment.

"You have heard of the nobleman, who having been thrust into the dark and lonely prison, found his health failing and reason tottering from lack of occupation for mind and body, until one day he took from his bosom a jeweled pin of priceless value to him and threw it to the farthest end of the dungeon, and then began to search for it. He had found a refuge from solitary despair in activity, and it kept him safe till the doors were opened and he went forth to light and liberty.

"There are all about us, in the darkness of sin and death, the priceless jewels of immortal souls, and the searching for these is a blessed activity, which keeps interest in life and health in the soul.

"Our ministry must reach all who need it, despite their character or their treatment of us. Even toward unworthy and disagreeable people we are to maintain that love that never faileth. This may be difficult to do in many instances. But those who study carefully our Lord's life will be struck with His wonderful reverence for human life. He looked upon all with pity and tenderness. And, further, He stood before men, not as a king, demanding attention, reverence, service, but as one who wished to serve, to help, to lift up. He said He had not come to be ministered unto, but to minister. He never thought of what was due from man to Him, but always of what He could do for them, how He could serve them.

ABANDONED AFTER OVER FIFTY YEARS

Impressive Services as Farewell to Second United Presbyterian Church Edifice.

The congregation of the Second Presbyterian church, Sixth avenue, abandoned the old edifice for all time yesterday morning, after the regular service. The final service, however, was not without the impressive incidents such a service would naturally bring out. Both before and after the service the members of the congregation chatted together and brought up reminiscences of the great good accomplished during the long years of work in the downtown district.

As accurately as can be known the Second church was founded in 1817. The present edifice is the second to be erected on the site. It was built in 1848. The congregation will hold the first services in the new edifice, Stanton and Negley avenues, next Sunday.

The Rev. Dr. D. S. Littell, pastor of the church for over 16 years, touched on the work of the "old house" during the course of his sermon yesterday morning. Taking for his text Cor. 1:51, he said in part:

"We shall come nearest to the divine ideal of the text if we leave the building of the first house of worship here in 1817 and the second in 1848 and the third in the present year in the background as commonplace events, and give our attention to a more stupendously sweet and comforting thought; that the 'old house' is the earthly house of this tabernacle, the body, the family, the congregation, the church building.

"It is earthly, it is visible, it is tangible. It is a tabernacle, movable, changeable, soon wearing out. The new, a building of God, a construction 'not made with hands.' This building is heaven.

"We may find pleasures in viewing great piles, but there is an ever new, a never changing site toward which we should aim—heaven. It is eternal. It is lasting. Earthly structures rise and fall, but God's word and God's law and God's love are one and the same, undivided, unchangeable, incorruptible and eternal. Let us look to the things that are of God. Let the abandoning of the old for the new be but a means of attaching us more and more to the things that are of God."

LARGE AUDIENCES AT PARK SERVICES

Stereopticon Views Illustrated Dr. Young's Sermon in Schenley Last Night.

The Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young of the Second Presbyterian church preached to two large audiences last evening in West park, Allegheny, and in Schenley. The services were held at 6:15 in the former park, and in Schenley at 7:45. The services in Schenley were made unusually interesting by stereopticon views, illustrating Dr. Young's sermon, which was an excellent descriptive one of the events of Christ's life, from the crib to the cross. The views were made from photos taken by Dr. and Mrs. Young while on tour of the Holy Lands. There were 50 pictures in all, showing the manger in Bethlehem, the flight, Nazareth, the sea of Galilee, the Jordan, the road to Jerusalem and other historic places.

The picture of Rameses the Great was thrown on the screen. "Some 3,200 years," said Dr. Young pointing to this picture, "Rameses has slept, as you see him. This is the man who saw Moses, the great one of God." Dr. Young described vividly the life of Christ, and wound up with an appeal to his hearers to follow in Christ's steps in the home life, the church, the life of sacrifice and into the life beyond the grave. It was announced that stereopticon views would be used to illustrate next Sunday night's sermon.

The Homestead library band and Mr. Butts and chorus provided the music for the occasion. Tonight a big outdoor meeting is to be held in the huge tent at the corner of Dinwiddie street and Center avenue, under the auspices of the Presbyterian evangelistic committee. Dr. Young and others will preach. It is expected that there will be a large attendance of Endeavorers, as special invitations have been sent to every society in the two cities.

WELSH PREACHER HERE.

The Rev. S. T. Jones of Rhyl, North Wales, Preached Sermon.

The Rev. S. T. Jones of Rhyl, North Wales, conducted the services yesterday in the Second Avenue Welsh Presbyterian church. The church was well filled at both services, and Mr. Jones was given an informal reception at the close of each. He will remain in the city for a few days.

He has just returned from the west, where he made an extensive tour, studying the history of his countrymen in those parts. In the evening union services were held, several of the Welsh churches of the city participating.

ATTACKS POINT IN NEW BRIEF OF REFORMED FAITH

Minister Says It Is Both Ruinous to Faith and Unscriptural.

RE-GENERATION AT ISSUE

Lemuel C. Barnes Claims That Church of Christ Consists of Those Only Who Believe in Him, and Not of Whole Visible World.

"Radical Error in the New Brief Statement of the Reformed Faith" was the subject of a sermon delivered in the Fourth Avenue Baptist church yesterday morning by the Rev. Dr. L. C. Barnes, pastor. Dr. Barnes commended the 'new brief,' but found some things that need explaining. In the course of his sermon he said:

"If I were under the un-Christian necessity of subscribing to any creed the new "Brief Statement of the Reformed Faith" would be as little objectionable as almost any. It is a noble statement of great truth in a somewhat modern form. An interrogation point, however, ought to be put on the margin of a few statements, and there is only one which requires an exclamation point, that is, 'The visible church embraces all who profess the true religion, together with their children!'

"In other words, the church of Christ consists of those who believe in Him and of a large number who do not believe in Him, many of whom never will believe in Him. This is the most radical and ruinous heresy that ever crept into the church of the living God. It is without any scriptural basis whatever. More than that, it is directly in the face of the most vital teaching that the Scriptures contain; the teaching as to the necessity of regeneration and faith.

"It is also contrary to common sense. Religion is nothing if it is not personal. Proxy religion is a contradiction in terms. It is also contrary to experience. The regeneration of infants by the ceremony of baptism is the cornerstone of Romanism. The mixing up of believers and unbelievers as church members is the worst source of harm to the cause of Christ that it ever has had or ever can have.

CHAUTAUQUA.

Dr. Lincoln Hulley Says Solomon's Songs Are Not Religious.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 20.—(Special.)—Dr. Lincoln Hulley is a man of original ideas and always presents an old subject in a new light. The Bible study for this morning was Solomon's Songs. Dr. Hulley startled the orthodox, and those who believe in the inspiration of every syllable in the Bible, by saying that this book was not a religious, nor even a moral book; that it had a hard time getting into the canons, being voted in by a very small margin. The old rabbis said no one should read it until after he is 40 years old.

"It is a drama," says Dr. Hulley, "or, at least, a dialogue, and tells the story of the Shulamite maiden who was brought from her home in the north to Solomon's harem. This beauteous maiden had left a lover in the north, and afterward returned and married him.

"There is nothing in the book that we can characterize as religious. The name of the Deity does not appear anywhere in its chapters. The marginal notes and commentaries which explain certain passages to express the love of Christ for His people and His church are mere fancies, made with good intention, but utterly meaningless, and are not suggested to you as you read the book.

"There is, however, a moral to the story, as to all stories, and this one is found in the last chapter: 'Love is as strong as death, jealousy as cruel as the grave.'"

CORNER STONE WAS LAID.

Colored Baptists of West End Not Deterred by Rain.

In spite of the stormy weather early yesterday afternoon a large crowd of colored people assembled to lay the corner stone of their new church, the Jerusalem Baptist, to be erected on Independence street, West End.

A large delegation of the Bond of Love Lodge, No. 2414, I. O. O. F., accompanied by the Hammond colored band of Pittsburgh, marched from their hall, corner Irwin and Jackson streets, Allegheny, to the site of the new church and conducted the laying of the stone.

On the route a heavy rainstorm drenched them to the skin, and the crowd took refuge under the culvert of the Panhandle railroad, which crosses Main street, until the storm ceased, when the exercises were held.

The religious services were conducted by the Rev. W. W. Brown, pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church of Allegheny and the Rev. C. B. Patterson, pastor of the Mt. Zion Baptist church of Pittsburgh. A short address was also delivered by the pastor of the new church, the Rev. P. Richardson.

The roll of the new church now numbers about 50 members. The building is to be a frame structure 40x25 feet, and will cost about $2,000.

COMPARED RAINBOWS.

Democratic Chairman Creasy and Donnelly by the Seashore.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 20.—(Special.)—Chairman W. T. Creasy of the Pennsylvania state Democratic committee and Chairman C. R. Donnelly of the Philadelphia Democratic committee arrived here yesterday and were in conference today. Neither would give out anything concerning the subjects under discussion. Both chairmen profess confidence that harmony has been restored in Philadelphia.

After gazing fondly upon the Democratic rainbow that their fancies had painted, the chairmen separated, Creasy leaving Atlantic City this afternoon.

LIBERTY, EQUALITY AND FRATERNITY

AS FETISHES OF SOCIETY, DR. HIRSCH DISCUSSES THEM.

The Problem of Unrest—Freedom of Contract Likewise Something of a Myth. Atlantic City Squall Plays Havoc With Yachting Parties.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 20.—The course of "Applied Philanthropy" in connection with the Jewish Chautauqua assembly was opened today by Dr. Emil G. Hirsch of Chautauqua. The synagogue being too small to accommodate all who desired to hear the discourse, the large theater in the steeplechase pier was secured for this morning's session, and there Dr. Hirsch discussed "Social Unrest" before the largest audience that has gathered since the assembly opened.

The course in "Applied Philanthropy" is in charge of Dr. Lee K. Frankel of New York and Dr. Charles S. Bernheimer of Philadelphia, and the various phases of the subject will be discussed throughout the week, concluding on Saturday, when the Rev. Dr. J. Leonard Levy of Pittsburgh will deliver a sermon on "Religious Aspects of the Immigrant Problem." The closing meeting of the Chautauqua assembly will be held next Monday, and on the evening of that day there will be a farewell entertainment, literary and musical, at the Rudolf.

In the course of his address today Dr. Hirsch said:

The Disease of Unrest.

"Not everyone born into life has been invited to the banquet of life. Where we laugh at the insidious sappers of life, the microbes, thousands of our fellow-beings are struggling hopelessly against their onslaught; where we lengthen out the expanse of our lives, thousands feel their lives have become contracted. Religion has lost for these thousands, these hundred thousands, its eloquence. They look up at the cross, and it does not symbol for them hope. They disbelieve in the promise that they who are last here shall be first yonder, they hold that this religious optimism is but the reflection of peculiar and exceptional situation of the favored few, while to them life is a monster which, without their consent, has taken them into its embrace and finds gluttonous pleasure in sapping their life.

"They have been told that the fittest will survive; they have learned that power is its own justification, and now they awaken giants to the consciousness that if power is the final determinant, they have the power; against the millions of gold, they put the millions of hands. Unrest is written in gold letters across the sky of our day, and unrest is furrowing the brow in the figure representative of our civilization. In these days the philanthropist finds an opportunity and also a sacred obligation.

Fetishes of Liberty and Equality.

"Certainly, 'liberty' is a sacramental word. Whose heart remains untouched when equality whispers its promise into his ears? And where is he who is not quickened to resolve and lifted to high outlook and uplook when they sing and look for the fraternity of man? And yet no words have been more deeply misunderstood than these words, 'Liberty, equality and fraternity.'

"Let each one follow his own interests, and somehow or other harmony will evolve out of struggle and concordance will be the result, is the philosophy of the economic man. Having no other call than that of asserting himself, feeling but one idea and reaching after but one ideal, caring not who falls, striking down him who is in the way, he runs the race with but one inspiration—that of getting there at whatever cost and price, invoking the natural law in excuse for his haste, and in justification for his carelessness. Fortunately, the economic man is a figment of their fancy.

"The other sacramental word 'Equality'—are we equal? Before the law, we are; before God, we are; but the equality before the law and before God does not imply that which I may do, and will do, and shall do. Men are equal absolutely. They are not equal for consumption, they are not equal for production.

"Freedom of contract also is a fetish. If we were all equal and equally free, we might make free contracts, but will you say that we who have feasted at the banquet of life are on the level in life with him who never had the certainty that tomorrow his hunger would be appeased without his begging or his stealing? Will you say that the man who controls millions of accumulated labor or capital is on a perfect level of equality with him who has nothing to sell but his labor, who must accept the terms today or he will starve tomorrow?"

Squall's Havoc With Yachts.

A fierce squall, which lasted about five minutes, struck Atlantic City late this afternoon, whirling blinding clouds of dust through the avenues and breaking a number of windows. Two small boats of the Seaside Yacht club were capsized and their occupants thrown into the sea, but all were men and able to swim, and they reached shore without assistance.

Andy Fulton of Pittsburgh was one of a yachting party five miles out at sea when the squall broke loose, but the yacht weathered the storm in fine style and nobody was injured.

The wind caused a stampede from the boardwalk, where crowds of visitors were promenading and sight-seeing, and many hats were lost in the shuffle. A number of bathing suits that were being dried on the roof of Clabby's bathhouse were torn from the lines and blown several blocks away.

BOIES PENROSE HAS A MORTGAGE ON RE-ELECTION

In the Heat of the Fight for Governorship, He Picks Up Votes for Himself.

PARTY UNITED FOR HIM

The Two Contests Before the Convention Kept District and Few Insurgents in the Legislature Will Vote Against Him—Well Earned.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
906 Fifteenth St., N. W.
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.

To those who have been on the inside of the legislative fight in Pennsylvania this year the talk of those who assert that Senator Penrose is to have hard work to secure a re-election, and that he is to be opposed by the friends of Attorney General Elkin because of the defeat of Elkin for the nomination for governor, is laughed at. It is easy to figure out on paper that there is such opposition, but the plain facts repudiate such a claim.

If the legislature next January is Republican—and the chances are a hundred to one that it will be overwhelmingly Republican—Senator Penrose will be almost unanimously renominated for another term. From present indications there will not be a corporal's guard of insurgents in the next legislature, whereas in the past two legislatures the insurgents were potent factors, preventing Senator Quay's re-election the first time and almost causing his defeat the second time; but in the coming legislature insurgents will be few and far between. While there will be some members from Allegheny, Washington and other counties who will go to Harrisburg instructed not to vote for the renomination of Senator Penrose, all will be instructed to enter the party caucus and vote for the nominee.

Two Contests Kept Distinct.

The legislative campaign this year seemed to have been lost sight of in the interesting contest over the governorship. While the Elkinites and the antis were fighting vigorously for state delegates, Senator Penrose and his friends were quietly securing the nomination in nearly all of the counties of men who would vote for his re-election. His fight was cleverly kept apart from the other contest, with the result that of all of the nominees nearly every one was a friend of the junior senator.

When Senator Quay assumed command of the opposition to the nomination of Mr. Elkin for governor he soon uncovered some queer analomies. In several counties he found that he was being opposed on the governorship fight by men who were running for the legislature in the interest of Senator Penrose and had formed alliances with the friends of the attorney general, and they stood by the bargain, notwithstanding the fact that they were compelled thereby to align themselves in opposition to the senior senator. This was notably the case in Blair, Luzerne and Schuylkill counties; but Senator Penrose quietly kept out of the main struggle and conducted his own fight in a way that received the approbation of his opponents.

No one can be found who ever heard Mr. Elkin or Gov. Stone assert that they would oppose the renomination of Senator Penrose, but the penny-a-liners on some of the papers do not hesitate to assert that the gentlemen named intend to so fight.

Elkin Goes in For Harmony.

So far as Mr. Elkin is concerned, the writer knows that he is not harboring any desire for revenge. He has always been a loyal Republican, and, while disappointed, he is at work in the interest of harmony. He will be a candidate for the governorship again in 1906, and will support Senator Penrose for renomination and in other ways so conduct himself as to make himself stronger than ever with the rank and file of the party. As a senatorship will not be at stake in 1906 it will be no surprise if Mr. Elkin is then the nominee for governor and that he will be elected.

The boom for Representative Connell is only a local matter and an expression of the pride felt in Lackawanna county for the grand old man of Scranton. Mr. Connell will be given every assistance by Chairman Quay and the state organization in electing the legislative ticket in Lackawanna and the other districts of the anthracite region, but it is understood that all of the nominees are regular and will go into the party caucus and support the nominee of the caucus. In the event that Senator Penrose is not the nominee, then Mr. Connell will become a prominent figure and may carry off the prize.

Penrose as a Senator.

So far as Senator Penrose is concerned, he has well earned another term. During his career in the senate he has watched faithfully over the interests of the state, and as a result no complaints are heard. In addition, he has had the largest correspondence of any man in the senate with the possible exception of Senator Hanna. Secretary Andrews, four stenographers and two clerks have been kept busy day and night answering the letters that have arrived. Every letter is answered and every opportunity accepted to grant the requests that are made.

In debate Senator Penrose has made his mark, and inside of the five years that he has been a member of that body he has forged to the front and receives attention whenever he addresses the body. As a patronage seeker Senator Penrose has been eminently successful, and hundreds of loyal Republicans have been placed in the government service through his efforts. CHARLES W. METZGAR.

TRADE WITH POSSESSIONS.

Five Times as Great as With Same Countries Five Years Ago.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—(Special.)—The non-contiguous territory of the United States now furnishes a market for $50,000,000 worth of the products of her people. A statement just prepared by the treasury bureau of statistics shows that the shipments from the United States to its non-contiguous territory during the fiscal year just ended have been, in round terms:

To the Hawaiian Islands	$20,000,000
To Alaska	15,000,000
To Porto Rico	10,000,000
To the Philippines	5,000,000
Total	$50,000,000

This is practically five times as much as the exports to those territories in 1897, when none of them, except Alaska, was under the American flag.

This is a side issue of the July Clearance. They are brand new goods, and you must know all about them. This is how they came to us.

Our Handkerchief buyer, just back from Europe, ran across a Belfast manufacturer who had a great lot of extra good Handkerchiefs that he had made up from mill ends. Now a mill end is nothing more than a remnant, and there is no difference, as to quality, between the remnant and the piece of which it was a part.

We bought the entire lot of several styles—sheer, medium and heavy cloth in such effects as hemstitching, hand embroidery, initials, hand-drawn work and combination blocks.

There are some 30,000 in the lot, enough to last for several days. The prices—averaging less than half—are as follows:

At 10c each—always sell for 18c and 25c—Hemstitched Handkerchiefs.
